Parking woes end with new 'free parking'

by MIKE ZAREMBA

Parking has always been a big headache in downtown Des Plaines. In the last few months the city has exchanged its bottle of aspirins for a new remedy — tokens.

Hoping to attract more business to the downtown area, merchants and city officials started a new "free parking" plan May 1.

UNDER THE NEW plan, merchants pass out 5-cent tokens to their customers for meter parking, in an effort to compete with "free" lots at shopping centers.

A roll of 40 tokens, worth $2, can be purchased at city hall and local banks at a discount price of $1.75 to both merchants and individuals.

To date, the city has distributed 577 rolls of $23,080 worth to various purchasing spots.

A RANDOM SURVEY of local businesses shows the token parking system has been greeted with feelings ranging from highly enthusiastic to "so what."

The one point most of the merchants agreed on was: "Many people are still unaware of the free token parking."

• Roger Spiegler, co-owner of Spiegler Department Store at 1467 Ellinwood St., said he still thinks there is a need to create an awareness of the tokens. "I don't think it will be a complete success until more people know about it," Spiegler said he did participate in an advertising campaign with 26 other local merchants to promote the tokens.

• "It's nothing earth shattering," said Vern Russell, owner of Alpine Camera at 686 Lee St. He said he gets about six requests a week for the tokens. Russell said because he gets between 100-250 people in a day, it wouldn't be profitable to pass out tokens to every customer, like some of the other merchants do.

• "We want the people to know we pay the parking," said Louis Capozzoli, owner of Square Deal Shoes at 1516 Miner St. "The token system has actually brought many of my customers back who stopped shopping in downtown Des Plaines because of the parking situation," Capozzoli said many of the merchants are participating in an advertising campaign on the tokens through WYEN-FM radio station, to sell people on the idea of shopping in the downtown area.

• Ald. Robert Hinde (4th) co-owner of Town And Country Carpet, 720 Lee St. said he is trying to give out as many as possible in hopes of establishing better customer relations. "With my average purchase ticket, I can afford to do it. Some of the smaller businesses can't afford to pass out a token with their small purchases."

A spokesman for the First National Bank of Des Plaines said that out of the 375 rolls of tokens the bank started with on April 26, 325 rolls have been sold.

A few residents interviewed yesterday at the Ellinwood parking lot said they were glad to have the tokens for free parking.

LAURA KAPICAK, a resident of Northbrook, said she works in Park Ridge and stops in Des Plaines to do her daily shopping. "I stopped in one of the stores about a month ago and one of the store owners gave me a token and told me to use it. 'From now on, I always ask for a token. Why should I pay?'"

Naperville has been using the token parking system for the last six years. The assistant city manager said when the program was first introduced to Naperville, "It was greeted with a lot of enthusiasm." I understand we have an awful lot of tokens right now," he said the Chamber of Commerce of Naperville has been discussing ways to re-vitalize the free parking plan.

"One of the areas we're going to work in will be a new way to distribute the tokens to the merchants on a more regular basis, rather than having the merchants do all the work of getting the tokens."

DON'T BOTHER TO detour around Oakton Street — despite what the Cook County signs say. The street is close enough to being finished that it can handle normal traffic flow. A widening project, between Wolf Road and Busse Highway, began over the work this week and the signs may come down.

Motorists can ignore barricade signs

Oakton Street virtually completed

by JOHN MAES

Motorists need not heed those strategically placed road barricade signs along Oakton Street from Wolf Road to Higgins Road.

According to John Shry, Cook County Highway Dept. engineer, the facelifting operation which widened the street from two to four lanes is "practically complete" along the 1 3/4-mile strip and the barricades will come down this week.

Workmen only have to clean a series of flood basins along the roadside before the $1 million enterprise is finished. State and county highway officials will inspect the project this week.

A previous phase of the Oakton Street widening project involved expansion of the road to four lanes between Lee Street and Mount Prospect Road. The job began in May, 1971 and was completed little more than a year later.

Inclement weather caused a delay in the more recent operation said Phillip Nelsen, chief construction engineer for the county highway department. Cold and rainy weather was responsible for more than five months of lost working time, he said.

"The rain especially made for lost time in the culvert construction at Higgins Creek. The rainfall kept filling up the excavations," he said. The street is located about two blocks east of Higgins Road.

ALTHOUGH MOST OF the road work was completed last year the barricades were left up because workers were still doing "bits and pieces" of work on the roadside, according to Nelsen.

He said traffic in the vicinity had to be minimized while crews were still working along the road.

But while the road was being rejuvenated, some business proprietors in the area were feeling the consequences, reporting sizable losses in business volume since work began last summer.

Mel Olsen, owner of the Marathon Service Station at Oakton and Mount Prospect estimated losing at least $4,500 in business in the last year.

"It seems I've lost money every day since those signs were put up there," he said. "This has been one of the best years for construction, there's no reason they couldn't have finished last fall and taken those signs down."

Olsen said he will be forced to close down his station in September because of his losses.

"Sure the barricades hurt my business," said Plato Funtas, owner of the Arco Service Station, at Oakton and Elmhurst Road. "People would see the barricades and take a different route. It would have been better if they were taken down sooner. I didn't see that much work going on there."

CHUCK CATING, assistant manager at Denny's Restaurant, also at Oakton and Elmhurst said business was "picking up more lately. It seems like people have been ignoring the sign for a while anyway."

He said business was most severely hurt last year when traffic had to be rerouted from Oakton.

Bob Krause, manager of Noah's Ark Pet Center at Oakton and Wiener Road, was uncertain how much his business was affected but feels he did lose some customers to the barricades.

"Half of our business comes from people driving in and we probably lost some of those customers."

Krause said he had placed a sign on the corner of Oakton and Elmhurst to let motorists know his shop was open while the barricades were up.

Children's dental clinic to open soon

Children's Dental Service has received its charter as a non-profit corporation from the Secretary of State.

The service was established to generate and organize community support for the operation of a Children's Dental Clinic to be staffed and operated by Cook County Department of Public Health, at 800 S. Beau Drive, Des Plaines.

The first Board of Directors consists of: Mrs. Donald E. Rose, president; Mrs. Richard D'Hondt, vice president; Mrs. Gene Artemenko, secretary/treasurer; Mrs. Jean Branding; Mrs. Marion Schwartz; and Victor Schur.

Financial support for the Clinic is still needed to buy the last few pieces of equipment to open the facility in early September. Approximately $750 is still needed.

The Clinic will provide free dental care to indigent and medically indigent children under 16 years of age.

Anyone interested in helping either financially or as a volunteer worker, contact Mrs. Rose, 824-4946, or Mrs. Artemenko, 437-8925.

This Morning In Brief

Alexander Butterfield, former White House deputy assistant testified that President Nixon's conversations and telephone calls in the White House and at Camp David have been recorded on his orders since 1970.

The public will get a look at President Nixon's Phase IV wage-price controls later this week, the White House said, but Nixon won't make the announcement due to his illness. The president meanwhile, continued to show improvement in his bout with viral pneumonia.

The Pentagon says American B-52s secretly started bombing Communist sanctuaries in Cambodia prior to 1970, and military commanders covered up evidence of the raids under orders from their civilian superiors.

Police in Tampa, Fla. called in every available man to hunt a youth who deliberately ran down three children with his car and sped away with the body of one of his victims. Two girls died and a boy escaped with minor injuries.

Auto mechanics to vote on new employer contract

by LEA TONKIN

It's a mechanical jungle out there in the world of auto repair shops.

The competition is fierce, and surprisingly, the customer is king. Tonight, most of the auto repair mechanics in the Chicago area will vote on a new employer contract offer which is billed as the means to even up this struggle for survival.

Some 4,000 members of the Local 701, International Association of Mechanists and Aerospace Workers, will vote on the proposal at Plumbers Hall in Chicago at 8 p.m. They've been working without a contract following the July 1 expiration of an earlier agreement with the Employers' Association of Greater Chicago.

According to a business agent for Local 701, the way the union membership votes tonight will determine the next stage of negotiations. "At this time, we don't even know for how long the contract will be," he said.

The business agent said the employer group, representing several thousand auto dealers, is offering new provisions in the contract offer as a means of cutting its prices for repair jobs. "They feel they are fighting the mass merchandisers," he said, "but their parts prices are in some cases three times what the mass merchandiser charges."

What mechanics will decide is whether to accept four basic proposals. The most important, and controversial provision would allow a change in the method of compensation for auto mechanics. Pay changes and flexible working hours are also issues. But the Local 701 representative said more effective competition should be gained "in parts prices, not in wages."

There's a bumper crop of competitors for the almighty customer in the auto fix-up business, says C. David Burns, president of the employer group. The new boys in town are the so-called mass merchandisers, repair shops run by the likes of Sears, Roebuck and Zayre's and other retailers. They've been able to better the going rate for many repair jobs, cutting into the business of new car dealers and others in this line of work.

"We want to be more up-to-date on our pricing," says Burns, "to compete with the alley shops and the mass merchandisers. We think we're losing volume to the mass merchandisers. Most of these shops charge less and they pay less to their employees."

He says the employers' group, which represents nearly 300 new car dealers, accounts for 70 to 80 per cent of the auto repair business in the Chicago area. The way they're attacking the problem of increased competition is in moves toward greater price flexibility.

"The customer who brings in his car is billed on how many hours of work it takes," Burns said. Ford, General Motors and other auto makers send out the flat rate books, used along with the Chiltons guide, to determine how much time a tune up should take, and therefore, how much it costs.

What Burns and other employer representatives would like to see is the flexibility to charge less if the job takes less time. The way it works now, a mechanic can increase his earnings by doing the equivalent of an added two hours work a day, more or less, according to the rate books. The actual working time may be 8 hours, but customers are charged for the full time spelled out in the rate books.

Burns said the new contract offer includes provisions for greater flexibility in pricing and compensation, as a means to lower prices for repairs when possible. The provision for a four-day work week, if voted upon by the union members is also included in the proposal.

The pay for a journeyman mechanic is now $5.75 an hour. The new contract would add 25 cents an hour to this rate. Burns said auto mechanics average, in a 40-hour week, about 48 hours pay. This is based on calculations from flat rate manuals. The mechanic earns an average $276 a week.

No official comment on a strike vote was offered by the Local 701 spokesman on Monday, but Burns said it is a possibility. Bargainers will meet on Thursday to discuss the outcome of tonight's vote, and a lockout could be called if no agreement is reached by that time.

A 1969 strike by Ford and Lincoln Mercury mechanics lasted five weeks, in a dispute over compensation. There has never been an area-wide strike by auto mechanics, says Burns.

Fulle to sue Cook County Board

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Floyd Fulle will sue the Cook County Board this month and ask for an increase from five to six suburban commissioners on the 15-member board.

Fulle, a Republican county board member, said Monday he will file the suit in U.S. District court and will ask that representation on the county board conform to recent U.S. Supreme Court "one-man, one-vote" rulings.

The board denied Fulle's proposal June 18 to increase suburban membership on the board. Fulle has said that about 40 per cent of the county population resides outside the City of Chicago.

"A lot of people are involved in this,"

Floyd T. Fulle

said Fulle, Maine Twp. Republican committeeman.

"Experts in the field" — including several municipal attorneys — are preparing the suit. Only one person will be named as Fulle's public attorney.

"I hope to file the suit by Aug. 1 at the latest," Fulle said. "I would expect a decision by October."

A fall verdict could lead to the reapportionment change before December filing deadline for the March, 1974 primary election.

Fulle, not the Republican Party, will be plaintiff in the suit.

The board denied reapportionment in June after approving the proposal at an April 23 committee meeting. Membership on the board is divided between 5 Republican suburban members and 10 Democrat city members.

Chicago commissioners have held 10 board votes for more than 100 years. A two-thirds vote is required to approve major county board actions.

Fulle recommended the change in board membership after release of 1970 census figures. Fulle's totals showed that 2,125,412 persons live in suburban areas and that 3,366,957 live in Chicago. Total county population is 5,492,369.

Comr. John Stroger, a Chicago Democrat, argued during debate on Fulle's proposal that census figures were incorrect and that as many as 175,000 persons were missed, many in black and Spanish areas of the city.

Grant to CTA approved

The Cook County Board unanimously approved a $2 million grant for the financially-plagued Chicago Transit Authority Monday.

The grant follows disbursement of $3 million by the county to the CTA Feb. 5.

"We should advise the legislature that the county is not in a position to continue these grants," County Commissioner Floyd Fulle said. "They had better get in gear" and organize a regional mass transit district.

Although the $3 million was matched by Chicago and the state, Monday's grant is non-matching. "Chicago already has made a grant and they might do likewise," County Board Pres. George Dunne said.

The $2 million will come from the county's share of motor fuel tax funds.

More volunteers needed for zoo work

The Docent Committee of the Lincoln Park Zoological Society needs 50 more volunteers for its expanding educational services to the zoo.

Docents conduct scheduled tours of Lincoln Park Zoo for school children and take animals on visits to Chicago school classrooms. The natural history of birds, mammals and reptiles is discussed as well as environmental factors that have placed so many animals on the endangered species list.

To become a Docent, a volunteer must attend a training course consisting of eleven weekly three-hour lectures given by the professional zoo staff and pass an examination. Men and women volunteers are wanted. They should be 21 years or older with at least a high school education. Volunteers should be able to contribute one day per week.

The next training course is scheduled to begin in September. Anyone interested in becoming a Docent is asked to attend an orientation open house on Saturday, July 21, in the Cultural Arts Center, 2045 N. Lincoln Park West, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. For more information, call 935-6106.

Local hospital offers classes for diabetics

Classes for diabetics will be offered by Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 1, 2, 8 and 9.

The classes will be taught by clinical nutritionists and registered nurses on the hospital staff. Each participant must have approval from his personal physician to attend although the physician does not have to be a member of Lutheran General's medical staff.

Persons registering for the classes must attend all four sessions. There is a $15 charge to cover the cost of instructional materials.

Among the topics to be covered are "Medical Aspects and Diabetic Emergencies," "Introduction to Diet and the Diabetic Exchange System" and "Food Preparation and Eating Away From Home." A discussion period will follow each presentation.

Reservations should be made by contacting the clinical nutrition department at Lutheran General, 696-2210.

Blood donated by MSD staff

Employees of the Metropolitan Sanitary District donated 237 pints of blood at Hines Veterans Administration Hospital on June 8 and July 6.

Among the donors to the project, sponsored by the district's American Legion Post 800, were Sanitary District Vice Pres. Nicholas Melas and Trustee Joanne Alter.

One sanitary district employee, supervising civil engineer S. Peter Bourbaki, was lauded by MSD Pres. John Egan for having donated blood each year for 21 years since the district began its donor program.

Plans revealed for school 'expo'

Details of the upcoming School and College Expo at Holiday Inn in Elk Grove Village were revealed by E. R. Flitcraft, founder and chairman of the National Education Coordinating Committee.

"There is such a need for continuing education," stated Flitcraft, "it behooves schools and colleges to make it easy for the public to obtain information about courses available. We want to synthesize all of the answers under one roof."

Participating schools are expected to have representatives present with interview facilities, data-filled exhibits, and to be ready with answers to the many questions regarding education and federally insured loans for education.

Flitcraft expects to operate the school and college expo all year, providing enough enthusiasm is generated among educators. Persons seeking answers regarding the Expo may call Flitcraft afternoons at 437-6010.

Young people join church

Twelve young people were received into membership of the First Congregational Church, recently after completing a two-year course of study, under the leadership of Rev. Garry A. Scheuer, Jr., Senior Minister; Rev. Ernest C. Grant, Associate Minister; and Gregory A. Morgan, Minister to Youth. As their class project, they created and hung two 30-ft. banners from the front of the church with messages from the story of Pentecost in the Bible . . . "I WILL POUR OUT MY SPIRIT" and "THE ROADS THAT LEAD TO LIFE."

Young people become full members of the church at Confirmation and may serve on the boards of the church and participate in congregational meetings and decision making of the church.

Confirmants include: Rick Paulsen, Paula Potter, Lisa Phillips, Liz Hubert, Audrey Nyberg, Jeff Hubert, Darlene Blazek, Jerry Hanlon, Mike Barkell, John Svoboda, Janice Hink and Cathy Braunz.

He 'chucked it all' for a vegetable stand

Banker goes 'back to land'

by JOE SWICKARD

Before you finish your coffee, grab your briefcase and make a dash for the train, stop and think what you'd really like to do.

How about that resort lodge up North you dream of while stuck on the tollway? A charter boat captain's lot on the lakes or maybe Florida off the Keys appeals to you. It would be great to have someone else pay you to go fishing.

Back to the land. We all dream of it. It's a good, simple natural life. Willie Loman tended a garden by moonlight and cursed the city while dreaming of a few acres in New Jersey.

RICHARD BURG saw a chance to realize his dream and he took it. At 26 he left his position as an assistant bank vice president to operate a fruit and vegetable stand by the side of the road, at Rtes. 22 and 83. He and a brother have another stand in Wheeling.

What kind of a man would chuck a $14,500 a year job with a promising future to take up an admittedly risky proposition of selling bags of apples and tomatoes at three pounds for a dollar?

"My brother worked in this stand for three years and he convinced me we could make a lot of money," said Burg.

THE STAND is not spectacular, in fact it could use a coat of paint or two. The location is good. Rtes. 22 and 83 are well traveled and the spotlights help business. The crossroads is somewhat of a commercial center in that part of rural Lake County. New player pianos are sold across the highway and the rinky-tink music provides a strange counterpoint to the thundering trucks.

Burg in jeans and tee-shirt stood proudly at ease among his wares and talked of what brought him there.

"I wanted to go into radio so I went to school and got a job in Ohio. I was starving out there so I came back to Chicago and got a job in a loan company. It was just supposed to be a filler, but you know how it is."

BURG'S SUPERVISOR left the loan company to work for the Bank of Ravenswood, Chicago. Soon Burg got a call to join the bank, too.

His climb at the bank was swift, from loan officer to assistant cashier to assistant vice president in three years.

"When I left, I oversaw about $13 million in installment loans. I had three men and six women working under me. I gave it a lot of thought and I started here on June 15. I love it."

He left the world of business suits and offices for jeans and an open-air stand.

"There were so many reasons for my decision. There was a lot of pressure and responsibility at the bank. I was meeting with many people all the time. I was getting tired of the hassles that go along with a bank, it was getting me down. I felt I was losing something of myself. Deep down inside, everybody wants a

FBI makes ID check on amnesia victim

Arlington Heights police are still awaiting results of an identification check by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on a man they are calling Joe Neff.

Neff, an apparent amnesia victim, turned himself into Arlington Heights police early on the morning of July 8, saying he could recall nothing about his past other than he thought his name was Joe Neff.

Since that time, Neff has been a voluntary patient in the psychiatric ward of Northwest Community Hospital. The man, who is about 30 years old, 6 feet tall and weighs 167 pounds, was to have been transferred to Elgin State Hospital this weekend.

However, a nursing supervisor at Northwest Community Hospital said Neff was still in the hospital's psychiatric unit undergoing tests.

operation of two stands. He has a goal of opening a retail and wholesale produce outlet in the Libertyville area.

"I've got contacts from when I was at the bank. I could get a Small Business Administration loan to set up, but it's a big move. I'd like to be able to do it this year. Perhaps that's too optimistic. What I'm trying to do, want to do, is sell good produce at reasonable prices."

The piano music drifted across the road. It's canned tinny joviality is ludicrous in the midst of cornfields.

"ONE OF THE nicest things about this is the informal way you do business out here. Farmers come by and tell you what they've got. If you like the price, you buy. It's friendly and more personal. At the bank everything is so structured."

Burg has not severed all contacts with his former fellow employees. Many of them make the drive from the city to his stand on a Sunday to chew the fat and pick up some produce.

Nor has he lost complete contact with his former customers from the loan department.

"People will drive up and look at me. Then they realize I'm the guy who arranged their car financing. They're startled. 'Mr. Burg! What happened?' They think I hit the bottle or something. It all works out, though," he laughed.

BURG JOKINGLY asked about the resale value of business suits, size 42. "I don't need them anymore."

The homegrown vegetable season is fast approaching, apples are selling briskly and Richard Burg looks to the future of produce marketing. But beneath the unpainted counter there are three relics: nameplates reading Richard Burg, Loan Officer; Richard Burg, Assistant Cashier; Richard Burg, Assistant Vice President.

And tomatoes are the best seller and bargain at three pounds for a dollar.

Automobile stolen on test drive

A man and a woman strolled into Northwest Dodge, 1439 Lee St. Thursday and asked a salesman if they could take a snappy, late-model sports car for a test drive.

As of 24 hours later, however, the test drive was still being conducted, said Des Plaines police.

The woman was described as 5 feet 10 inches tall weighing about 135 pounds with blond hair while her companion was described as about 40 years old, five feet 10 inches and about 135 pounds, police said.

Summer school

Something new for handicapped

July is the month for vacations and summer school. This summer a group of children who've never had an opportunity for half that combination have discovered something new.

The something new is the summer school program at Kirk Center in Palatine offered to 155 mentally handicapped children for the first time.

On a recent morning, students ranging from three years old through high school age were involved in activities such as cookie baking, painting and clean-up of a garden just outside the school.

"Our emphasis is primarily on recreation for the summer," Principal Ron Sterrett explained. One of the teachers directing a painting project added, "It's for the kids this summer. There's nothing pushy about it."

THE SUMMER PROGRAM is offering the students, all of whom are classified trainable mentally handicapped, activities during the summer they have not had before, Sterrett said.

"The park districts have programs," he said, "but usually when they talk about handicapped kids they don't mean our kids. There's often nothing for our kids to do during the summer."

Cost of the summer program is being paid by the 10 Northwest suburban school districts who have students in Kirk Center. There were 210 students in the school during the regular school year and 155 chose to go to summer school.

Once a week on Wednesdays the students and teachers have the use of the Palatine Park District swimming pool and park. Other activities will include a trip to the Milwaukee zoo for the high school students.

"We've had a tremendous response," Sterrett said. "We're trying to provide the students with a varied summer program."

Deaf students urged to contact Harper

Elizabeth McKay, director of environmental health at Harper College, suggests that hearing impaired persons interested in attending Harper this fall contact her now at the college, at 397-3000, extension 268.

Supportive services will be available to about 20 hearing impaired Harper students this fall. These services include help from interpreters, notetakers and tutors.

Several deaf students attended the college last year and five are enrolled in the summer schedule. One summer student has already been graduated from a four year college and is continuing studies for the purpose of obtaining a teaching certificate. Students have been hiring their own interpreters and note takers.

CLEP exams slated at Harper in August

Harper College will administer the College-Level Examination Program (CLEP) general exams Aug. 14 and the CLEP subject exams on Aug. 16.

Application deadline for the August test dates is July 27. Candidates will receive their scores about Sept. 14.

The CLEP program was developed to provide a means of evaluating knowledge acquired through a wide variety of experiences and can lead to academic credit toward an undergraduate degree. People who have acquired knowledge thru job experiences, intensive reading, correspondence courses, or radio or TV courses may qualify for the program.

Two types of exams are available. The General Examinations measure achievement in five basic areas of the liberal arts: English composition, humanities, mathematics, natural sciences, and social sciences-history. Subject exams measure achievement in specific college courses.

For applications or further information, contact the Office of Testing Services, telephone 397-3000, ext. 341.

'Call me Dan' Walker may be making giant strides toward White House

by DAVID SMOTHERS

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A new equation of political power is taking form in Illinois. It has already eroded what is called the country's last political machine. It could add up to a bid for the White House.

The new factor is the equation of Daniel "Call him Dan." Walker.

Just about everybody in the know laughed when Walker set out to become governor of Illinois.

Now, just about everybody in the know thinks Gov. Walker of Illinois is flirting with the idea of running for president, and Walker is no longer anybody's laughing matter.

Particularly not on the fifth floor of City Hall in Chicago, where Mayor Richard J. Daley hands out orders. A few years ago he ran the Democratic Party in Illinois. Everybody in the know knew that. Now, that is no longer a safe bet.

Walker is unique among modern Democratic governors of Illinois, the late and revered Adlai E. Stevenson included. He does not owe his political soul to the Chicago machine.

He won the primary in the spring of 1972 against a popular rival and old friend by campaigning against Daley and the Chicago establishment. He beat a well-regarded Republican governor last November, largely by convincing downstate Illinois that a $118,000-a-year corporate lawyer from the money marts of Chicago was really just folks.

Now he is working on the second installment of the Dan Walker political formula.

A GOVERNOR for little more than five months, he is considering his power base through the state and in the expanding communities around Chicago. He is willing to deal and work with Daley now, but on his own terms, as equal political chieftains.

The Walker gamble is that Illinois is changing, Daley is aging, and the Chicago bosses do not have the clout to run the state's Democratic Party all on their own any more.

The Walker brain trust figures that the way is wide open for a man who can lock in a personal following in downstate Illinois — and can then call upon Chicago for the standard Democratic majorities the organization must supply to stay strong.

Accordingly, Walker will be out in the country "putting himself on the line," trying to get his own kind of legislature, people beholden to him, elected next year.

Maybe he will be in the primaries, trying to punish his enemies and handpick his own candidates. Walker says he hasn't decided about that.

Maybe he will go where the brave dare not go — into Daley's Cook County, to challenge the mayor's choice for such vital posts as county assessor, president of the county board and sheriff. If he could carry that off, he would have pretty fair credentials for being a boss himself.

Walker smiles and says that is still up in the air.

And then, assuming all goes well, a Walker associate says, "in 1976 the next office Walker will run for will be another term as governor of Illinois or a national office."

"National office" could mean two things. One would be taking on Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy, a power in his own right. But Walker's people don't seem to be talking about that. They dream openly of the Illinois delegation — Daley and Walker's men included — going into the Democratic National Convention solidly committed to Walker.

WALKER BARELY escaped an "aw shucks" demeanor when presented with such a prospect. "It's idle to talk about because I'm going nowhere if I'm not going to be a good governor," he said in an interview. "I'm not even going to be re-elected, if I decide to go for reelection, and I haven't decided that yet."

"My job is to prove that I can be a good governor and obviously in five months I haven't proved that I can be a good governor. I know that."

Many, if not most, of the political pros in Springfield and Chicago would agree heartily with that assessment. There are so many paradoxes surrounding Walker.

He came into office on a string of promises to wield a mighty axe against taxes, patronage, waste and corruption in government, not to mention what he used to call "the dead hand" of Richard J. Daley.

Yet he presented no program of consequence to the legislature and those measures he proposed — a modest tax relief offering and a regional transit plan for the Chicago area, to name two — were happily carved into pieces by a coalition of Republicans and Daley Democrats. Six of his key cabinet appointments were kicked out.

He promised a government open to the people. Yet practically his first act was to appoint as deputy governor Victor de Grazia, a veteran of Chicago political infighting who is variously described by his many detractors, and some of his friends, as secretive, ruthless, plotting, impetuous, devious, Machiavellian, brilliant, stupid, unprincipled — the list grows redundant.

There are those who say De Grazia makes more of the hard nosed decisions than Walker; that a good deal of the time he is the man running the state of Illinois, if anyone is — and doing it behind closed doors.

It is part of Walker's professed game plan to work with Daley on governmental matters, at the very least. That has been the way to get things done in Illinois, be the governor Democrat or Republican. Walker says, reasonably enough, "Since most of the people in the state of Illinois live in the Chicago area, I want to work with their elected representatives, and that means Mayor Daley."

Yet intimates say the two men are hardly on speaking terms. One man said even their secretaries aren't talking to each other.

IT WAS A major news event recently when the two got together for lunch in Chicago's Mid-American Club. Walker has a bright young Daley man, Neil Hartigan, as his lieutenant governor. Walker gives Hartigan little, if anything, to do.

Distrust and suspicion directed toward Walker is bipartisan. A powerful Republican state senator, Howard McBroom of Kankakee, took time off from voting against the Democrats to sit on the sidelines of the Senate floor and count the ways he does not like the man.

"This is the most political administration this state has ever seen," McBroom said. "Walker has hired a man to run this government while he goes tearing around this state campaigning. De Grazia — he's the one running things."

"He says he's against patronage but he's firing people all over the state. It's the same as it's always been and I wouldn't mind it if he'd admit it. But he won't."

"In this chamber, I guess maybe he's got perhaps six friends. Go over to the House and maybe multiply that by three. And that's about how many here like and trust him."

"He's not a governor. He's a showman."

There are Democrats in Springfield who would say much the same. Walker professes he is not surprised, that he is not running in a politicians' popularity contest.

What he is doing is pursuing the ardent courtship of the people of Illinois which began in earnest in 1971 when he bought a pair of strong boots, tied a red bandana around his neck, and walked the length of the state getting the people to know Dan Walker, getting them to call him "Dan."

He is still at it. The "campaigning" McBroom fumes about consists largely of "accountability sessions" — flying trips all over the state, get-togethers in small town high school gymnasiums and meeting halls where he tells what he is up to, denounces his adversaries, and leaves himself open for tough questioning from the grass roots.

It works, or seems to. WALKER AND his aides speak of surveys that show his rating in the eyes of Illinoisans as high or higher than when he led the Democratic tickets during the 1972 Nixon landslide. Reports are that the secret polls show up to 70 per cent approval of the governor's performance.

"The only base I have is people," Walker says. "The only way I can deal with the legislature is for the legislature to know that people are behind me."

"Daley and me, it's a different kind of politics. Mine is much more people oriented — I have to use these words, they're clichés but they happen to be accurate — than the organization form of politics."

"One depends very heavily on jobs. Mine depends heavily on getting through to people so that they understand what I'm doing and where I'm going. In a very real sense it's a more precarious way to go about it. It's fun, though."

"I did three parades in the last couple of weeks and the usage of the first name comes phenomenally high. 'Hi, Dan... Glad to see you walking, Dan... Keep on fighting, Dan... Don't let them get you down, Dan.' It's a very personal, friendly, 'I know that guy' relationship and that's my strength."

A large, youngish 50, Walker has both physical and intellectual presence. He talked things over last month, toward the end of his first legislative session when it seemed most of the plans he had backed were being torpedoed.

"Every new governor has problems with the legislature," he said. "That happens everywhere. Here it is Republican dominated and the Democrats are fragmented. Add to that the regular organization differences with me and you have more problems."

"It's tough, because we're going against all the conventional wisdom on how you can build a record as a governor. The normal way you build it is to spend money on programs that have high visibility, meanwhile to hire all the people you can because that makes legislators happy — hire their friends and get bills through..."

"I'm not cocky enough to sit here and say, 'By God, I'm going to change this whole thing around. But you can try. We'll find out whether I can.'"

"The testing time is still to come. My brand of government has not been tried in this state ever and I have to find out whether it's going to work or not."

Independents ask voice in replacing McCabe

by BOB LAHEY

"Independent" Democrats in Wheeling Township have offered to dissolve their rump organization in exchange for a voice in selecting a successor to James L. McCabe, committeeman of the Regular Democratic Organization who has announced his resignation.

McCabe's response to the overture was that his successor will be named by the precinct captains of the regular organization, and that members of the Wheeling Township Independent Democratic Coalition are not eligible to vote. McCabe said yesterday, however, that he had not seen the written offer.

In a letter to McCabe, Nathaniel Leighton, chairman of the independent coalition, asked that two members from his organization be added to a three-member committee appointed by McCabe to establish the machinery for selecting his successor.

"IN RETURN for this opportunity to be recognized as members of the regular organization and to assist in the selection of a new committeeman," Leighton wrote, "our steering committee has agreed to disband our organization and recommend that each of its members become as active in the regular organization as they were in the independent organization."

Leighton told the Herald that, if the regular organization agreed to the proposal by the coalition, "we would have a candidate" for committeeman.

He added that he would appear before the precinct captains as a candidate, if the regular organization accepted the offer by the coalition.

McCabe said that he will not name a successor. The normal process for filling a vacancy in the committeeman's post, he said, was for the precinct captains to recommend a candidate to the Cook County Central Committee, which would then make the appointment.

State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, one of the three-member committee, said she knew "of no case" in which the central committee had not accepted the recommendation of the precinct captains.

MRS. CHAPMAN said she has not met with the other committee members, regular organization treasurer Pete Wenzel and Lorena Stevens, president of the township Democratic women's organization. She said there has been no decision as to what procedure will be followed in recruiting, screening or recommending candidates. But she said she would welcome any nominations or recommendations from any Democrat.

She added, however, that electing a committeeman from outside the ranks of the regular organization would be like "electing as president of the Rotary Club someone who not only hasn't been an officer, but who hasn't even been a member."

McCabe commented, "I doubt if they (the independent coalition) would elect me as their president."

Federal fund cutback will hurt: school chief

A federal fund cutback could wipe out Cook County's school truancy and building inspection staffs next year, Richard Martwick, county superintendent of schools, said Monday.

Martwick, in an appearance before the Cook County Board, said he will lose $76,428 to finance 11 staff positions when the Emergency Employment Act expires in December.

"This will cripple our life safety and truancy departments," he said.

To "compensate for the loss," Martwick asked the board to boost his personnel budget to $120,000 in 1974. The request, a hike of seven per cent, would increase the truancy and inspection staff to 14 persons.

"I'm certain there will be no increases in 1974," County Board Pres. George Dunne told Martwick.

The county faces a loss of $14 million in federal revenue sharing funds next year, Dunne said. "There's some belt tightening in the offing. It's going to be a greater responsibility of school districts" to make up the loss.

DUNNE SAID county department heads will receive notice next month of personnel cutbacks "that will be required because of the federal fund" drop from $25 million to $11 million.

"We will be in a precarious position," Martwick said. "It will be almost impossible for us to inspect schools and check for fire code and sanitation."

Martwick estimated that the fund loss will eliminate 90 per cent of his truancy and inspection staff.

More than 1,400 truancy cases were investigated in 145 school districts last year, he said. Only 26 districts employ local truancy officers.

The Illinois Legislature recently approved a law that requires quarterly reporting by local districts of drop-outs and students expelled to the county, he said. "There may be as many as 10,000 students out of school — walking streets — getting involved in crime."

Martwick said the federally-funded staff reviews proposed school construction plans, conducts on-site inspections, handles truancy cases, provides teacher services and seminars and aids in collective bargaining.

MSD to award $25 million pacts for 16 projects

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees will vote Thursday to award close to 25 million in contracts for 16 separate projects.

The projects, including improvements to the North Side Sewage Treatment Plant, have been held up since spring because of delays by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency in releasing federal grant funds.

The delays were caused by implementation of new EPA regulations for grant awards. The federal grants for all 16 of the projects now being offered to the district total $17,933,100.

In addition to work at the North Side plant which serves portions of the northwest suburbs, the projects include work at the West-Southwest treatment plant in Stickney and the Calumet treatment plant and interceptor sewers in various suburban areas including a sewer in Maine Township from Central Road to Golf Road along Greenwood Avenue.

Something new in women's clubs

by HELEN HENNESSY

Golf's the game for gals galore. "More than two million women are involved in the active golf scene," said Don A. Rossi, executive director of the National Golf Foundation. But men and women play the game somewhat differently.

A man hits a golf ball about 225 yards on his drive and then has about 150 yards to get to the green on a par-4 hole. The average woman golfer has to play golf by wit rather than strength. She hits her drive 150 yards, the second about 130 yards. Still 75 yards short of the green, she's got to swing a lot of short, tricky finesse shots to reach the green. With more in-between shots, a woman plays a shorter game of golf.

"It's a game of feel rather than of actual power," said LPGA pro Louise Suggs. And here are some fine points she feels a woman can use to improve her golf game.

TO MASTER the short game, try not to be overanxious and think you can hit the ball completely to the hole. Instead, consider the possibilities of rolling. If you are hitting uphill, hit a little further. Downhill, don't hit quite so hard. Never try to put backspin on the ball. Let the grooves on the clubhead do that for you. Striking the ball properly will automatically put a backspin on the ball.

The most important single factor in the short game is selecting the right club. And, if a woman's going out to buy golf clubs, this year more than ever before, she's got a lot to consider.

Overwhelmed by the phenomenal growth and demands of women golfers, golf companies have been busy consulting LPGA pros and suddenly there's a whole new spectrum of feminine, colorful ladies golf equipment in the pro shops and sports catalogues. The days of "token" women's golf clubs are over. The National Golf Foundation reports that last year 423,000 women played at private clubs, 877,000 at daily fee courses and 928,000 at municipal courses. The Ladies Pro Golf Association tour soared from five in the '30s to 60 members in the '70s.

"WHILE OUR statistics show that women outnumber men in joining the ranks of the nation's golfers over the past decade," said Rossi, "their impact goes beyond mere members. Women now in their second and third stages of golf have drastically changed their recreational philosophy as well as how they play the game."

In the past women felt that extra money in the budget should go to getting their husbands the best golf clubs. But mobility, changes in family orientation and increased leisure time have freed women from feeling guilty about spending money on their own recreation equipment.

Beginner or pro, a woman today has to be aware and informed to select the clubs that best suit her. To make a valuable purchase she should take into consideration her own strength, size, weight, length of arms and hand size as they relate to her ability to swing a golf club. According to Tony Penna, long-time golf professional and designer of his own line of clubs, "A woman changes with age and so should her clubs."

IN OTHER WORDS, the club you played with at 25 may not fit your individual strength and style at 40.

A complete line of woods and irons are now available for women. The Super Blade, designed to help the ladies, provides the largest power area of any iron made. It is ideally suited to women because by shortening the hosel this weight is now distributing through the clubhead's hitting area giving greater playability, power and clubhead thrust.

"If the shaft doesn't fit a woman's swing velocity, the golf club could be useless," Toney Penna said. He's a firm believer that no woman golfer can play to full potential unless her clubs are made to personal specifications.

Cognizance of the ladies' market came to most golf manufacturers about nine years ago when Betty Jameson and Cybil Griffen were great names in golf. Pampering led to design modification. Here's what women's force in the marketplace generated.

MacGREGOR CONSULTS Judy Rankin, Marlene Hagge, Sharon Miller and other women ranking in the top 15 pro money winners. Dunlop named their top-quality clubs after Suzie Maxwell, 1972 U.S. Open Champion who assisted with the design. Northwestern has hired two LPGA golfers, Debbie Austin and Margie Masters, to field test new equipment.

Ben Hogan's company's plunge into ladies equipment led them to design a specific shaft for women. It's not a cut-down men's shaft, and women's grips are one-third second smaller than the men's. And other manufacturers have made other changes to benefit women.

Aesthetically, women seem pleased manufacturers show color-coordinated woods in mahogany mist, high luster blues or exotic greens. But flashy color shouldn't prevent them from looking intently for the same quality features found in men's clubs, differing only slightly in lighter weights, slightly shorter shafts and grip size.

Susan Unger chooses yellow for her June 23 wedding

For her marriage June 23 to Paul A. Watts, the former Susan E. Unger of Palatine chose a yellow color scheme.

Her attendants were gowned in yellow, and they and the bride had yellow roses in their bouquets. Yellow roses decorated the tables at the wedding reception in the Plum Grove Club and also the wedding cake.

As Susan exchanged vows with Paul in a 6 o'clock ceremony at St. Paul United Church of Christ in Palatine, she was attired in an Empire style dress of white tulle lace over white taffeta finished in a court train. It featured an Empress neckline and bouffant sleeves. Her fingertip veil, trimmed in Alencon lace, fell from a matching Alencon lace tiara. Her yellow rose bouquet was accented with baby's breath.

Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Unger of 127 W. Old Plum Grove Road, had her sisters as attendants. Kathy Unger was the maid of honor and Jennifer the bridesmaid.

THEIR FLOOR-LENGTH organza gowns in a yellow English garden print were fashioned with Empire bodice, a high neckline finished with a tiny scallop and long sleeves that had scalloped cuffs. They wore fresh flowers in their hair and carried bouquets of yellow Sweetheart roses and white daisy mums.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Watts of Boerne, Tex., is a second class Navy petty officer stationed at the Glenview Naval Air Station. Several of his fellow Navy men from the station were in the wedding party. James Halter Susan, a graduate of Palatine High School, has a B.S. in nursing from Goshen (Ind.) College. Her new husband attended Tyler (Tex.) Junior College.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: You pulled a boo-boo, didn't you? One day you wrote that there was nothing dangerous about Epsom salts and the next I read that Epsom salts were being recalled because of the danger. Smarty-pants!

—Georgia H.
Not guilty. Either you didn't read right, or the story you read was cut down so that the point was lost. One company fouled up. There was a mixup in the package of Epsom salts and saltpeper. A smart customer recognized the difference and reported it. Saltpeper is powdery, Epsom salts crystal-like. Since both products are used in prescriptions (in the purified form), it would have been dangerous to use saltpeper instead of Epsom salts. So the FDA promptly called in the mislabeled packages, identified by the proper lot numbers. Who's the smarty-pants?

Dear Dorothy: I cut the recipe for onion soup out of your column, but have been unable to find the packets of powdered beef bouillon you mentioned. Do I have to go someplace special?

—Alice Aliff
I'm surprised because I see the bouillon with different weight sizes on them. One says .19 ounces, another 4.5 grams. They all add up the same way because each says the same thing about making a bowl of soup — just add six ounces of hot water. Look again and just make sure you get the plain beef bouillon (even this is lightly seasoned).

Dear Dorothy: Because it is so important that there be no fat on the beaters or dish when beating whites of eggs, I give the dish and beaters I'm going to use a final rinse in water which has a drop or two of vinegar to cut any possible fat.

VIENNA — Can pleasant memories be recaptured?

As Lufthansa flight 266 from Munich turned into its landing pattern, my thoughts raced back three years to my previous visit to this gay Austrian city.

Nostalgically, I remembered the warm summer night Clare and I waltzed under the stars in the Stadtpark — the hilarity and "Wiener Gemutlichkeit" at the new wine garden in Grinzing — the acute sense of history as we toured the private chambers of Maria Theresia, Franz Joseph and Marie Antoinette in Schonbrunn Palace . . . and music, music, music everywhere. Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert — and, most of all — the king of the waltzes, Johann Strauss.

This time it was a business trip — but with plenty of free weekend time to explore. Our headquarters — the first class Parkhotel Schonbrunn is directly across from the mile-square Schonbrunn Palace Gardens.

The Mayor of Vienna hosted our delegation at a special reception and dinner Friday night — an elegant affair held at the city hall in the center of town.

SATURDAY WAS FREE for sight-seeing, shopping and strolling the streets of the old city within the Ringstrasse, a tree-filled, 10-lane, 184-foot-wide boulevard that almost surrounds the central city.

"DAS WIENER Reisenrad" — world's largest Ferris wheel located in the Prater amusement park in Vienna.

THE MALL in the center of Schonbrunn Park behind Schonbrunn Palace, summer home of the Hapsburgs, rulers of the Austrian Empire for 250 years.

Nothing had changed. Nothing. Not a single modern high-rise was there to mar the skyline. The 448-foot spire of St. Stephen's Cathedral had no competition. Thank goodness.

Vienna is probably the only large European city not in the midst of a glass, steel and stone building boom — or torn up for installation of a new Metro system!

In the afternoon we drove out to the Prater amusement park, not much different than other amusement parks except for one special attraction — the world's largest Ferris wheel "Das Wiener Reisenrad." Built in 1896 by an English engineer, it lifts you 210 feet above the park. Its box-car size gondolas easily hold 30 people and a ride taking ten minutes is just one full revolution. From the top we could look out across all Vienna. In the distance we could see the "Wienerwald" — the famous Vienna Woods, thousands of wild and hilly acres north and west of the city.

We stopped at the Hofburg Palace, a massive complex of surprises. Its 18 sections are built in a hodge-podge of architecture spanning eight centuries. Besides the Hapsburg's winter palace, the Hofburg includes several museums, shops, halls for international conventions, two churches, a small chapel where the Vienna Boys Choir sings, and the Spanish Riding School where the white Lipizzan horses perform.

The boys choir public appearance and the riding school exhibition are both Sunday morning events all year long except in July and August.

The chapel and the Lipizzan arena are only a few hundred feet apart and tickets to both are extremely hard to come by because of very small seating capacities.

Saturday night in Grinzing! It seemed like every tourist and half the local Vienna population had the same idea.

Grinzing is the most popular of a half-dozen "new wine villages" located just inside the Vienna Woods.

TOUR MOTORCOACHES by the dozens, cars by the hundreds, were parked three and four deep around the dozen or so "Heurige," a word that means both the newest vintage wine and the garden or establishment that serves it.

It all started with a law that said a man could sell wine from his own vineyard tax free in his own wine garden, if he sold no other wine or liquor. Traditionally this type of "happy hour" establishment is recognized by a pine branch hung on the sign over the door.

All the Heurige in Grinzing that serve food as well as their homemade wine offer the same main course to everyone — broiled chicken.

We had reservations at one of the largest Heurige and every one of its 400 seats in a labyrinth of small rooms were occupied with Saturday night celebrants, couples, parties, families, natives and tourists.

It was just as I remembered. Crowds, music, dancing, and brightly costumed girls pushing through with huge trays of glass wine mugs over their heads. The heaping plates of broiled chicken and salad were delicious. All around, we could hear the babble of German, French, Italian and English.

Language seemed to be no barrier to understanding. A German family of three generations cornered me in the courtyard. The son obviously wanted to demonstrate his mastery of English in front of his family. With my few words of fractured German we got along fine.

The next morning we walked from the Heitzing Gate across from our hotel through the park to Schonbrunn Palace. Broad gravel paths alternate with flower beds. Corridors of tall clipped hedges and shaped trees form a geometric pattern of avenues that allow a glimpse of the palace from avenue intersections.

Among the hundreds of park strollers, we could easily spot the difference between the casually dressed tourists and the after-church dressed up Viennese families.

FOR ME, Schonbrunn Palace is the most spectacular in Europe. Although not as architecturally impressive as Versailles, it's big by any measurement — especially considering that it was just a summer palace.

Of its 1,400 rooms, 43 are open to the public. Each is more treasure-laden than the last — authentic, original furnishings, decorations and artwork that boggle the mind — and the private state apartments of 250 years of Austrian Empire Royalty! We wandered through rooms of Maria Theresia who had 16 children, among them Marie Antoinette, (who later lost her head in the Place de La Concorde in Paris over some silly statement she made about people eating cake) — and Emperor Franz Joseph who ruled the Austrian Empire for 68 years.

Even Napoleon Bonaparte got into the act. He conquered Austria in 1809 and made Schonbrunn Palace his headquarters after he married Marie Louise, daughter of Emperor Franz. It takes two hours just to walk through the 43 rooms. I wonder if any of its royal residents ever saw all 1,400 rooms?

Waltzing in the Stadtpark in front of a hatbox bandstand on a warm summer night! It was one of my most vivid memories of Vienna. So, Sunday evening, after a reception and buffet at the Hotel Inter-Continental, I decided to revisit the scene. Crossing the Wienfluss, a canal that borders the park, I could hear the music — but not from the bandstand. The evening was cool so activities had been moved indoors to a large salon called the Kursalon. It was packed. Long tables of wine drinkers surrounded the crowded dance floor. A 4-piece orchestra was filling the hall with Viennese waltzes.

About mid-evening the orchestra leader held up his hands and a hush of anticipation fell over the crowd. A troop of period costumed professional waltzers entered as the leader turned and gave the known beat. The Blue Danube Waltz, of course! The emotional impact was stunning — like the perfect performance of a National Anthem.

Unlike most other great cities of the world, Vienna seems to fiercely resist changes. All but one. Unfortunately, in the area of inflation, Vienna is in the forefront. In three years we found the price of everything had more than doubled.

Mexico City-Cuernavaca train ride a bargain

MEXICO CITY — A five-hour train ride for 44 cents? Such an economical excursion is possible between Mexico City and Cuernavaca. And it's a fun trek, reminiscent of the days when train rides were sometimes regarded as rather risky undertakings.

First, there are the soldiers aboard. But no need to worry. The soldiers are simply historical holdovers from the 1910-20 revolutionary era. Back then, they were prime targets of Emiliano Zapata's rebel bands staked out in the mountains around Cuernavaca.

Zapata's men eventually took over the Cuernavaca train and staffed it with sandaled gentlemen in big, floppy sombreros who had bandoliers of bullets draped across their shoulders.

When the revolution was won, folks put away their weapons and settled down. From then on, the Cuernavaca train was as peaceful as a Disneyland monorail. But even with the territory tamed, the train looks like rolling stock from a six-pistol thriller — set amid dazzling technicolor terrain.

PICTURE THE SCENE: The train winds up impossibly beautiful mountains across a 10,000-foot high pass, with full brakes on the downgrade to Cuernavaca. It creaks and curves through bald-faced gaps, on past odd little cones of dead volcanoes and rocky shoulders bulging out of pines and tall grass. Seemingly at any minute, a stalwart lawman should mosey through the train cars to survey the riders on the slat benches.

More local color comes with the people along the route. Whenever the train stops, Indian vendors appear with baskets of food and drink. They walk along hawking their wares as travelers hang out of the windows to buy their lunch. Everybody eats each time food appears.

So, most passengers bring more appetite than baggage.

But food is not always the only reason for a rest stop. The engineer has been known to stop and chat with relatives who live along the way. Passengers can get off during such a pause to stretch their legs, or even pick wild flowers in the fields.

American Airlines has daily flights to Mexico City.

TRAVEL LORE

by Clare Wright,
TRAVEL EDITOR

Even though I've been a confirmed "jetter" for sometime now, there are still those easygoing no-deadline travel jaunts I like to take in the family station wagon.

With the gas shortage you may have to ration your weekend — or week-long — exploring trips this summer, but with careful planning you can show the family a lot of fascinating spots in our neighbor states not too many miles away.

In Wisconsin for instance, you can pretend you're in Switzerland by visiting New Glarus, a delightful Swiss community.

Holland, Mich., is so Dutch it has two wooden shoe factories, the best tulip farms in America and a 200-year-old working windmill.

Or, drive to East Troy, Wis., and visit the Trolley Museum — and take a ride on the old restored abandoned North Shore trains.

Be a real Lincoln buff and follow Abe's trail through Illinois Lincolnland — to New Salem, Mt. Pulaski, Lincoln, and Springfield.

Visit the Circus World Museum at Baraboo, Wis., where there's a circus parade and big top show every day — plus rides, sideshows and cotton candy.

Explore the amazing House on the Rock, one of the country's leading tourist attractions at Spring Green, Wis.

With just a little research — with the help of the Wisconsin and Michigan State Tourist Offices — you can chart some fine auto trips for the summer months.

Whether you're planning to be on the road for a few days, a few weeks — or more — the Chicago Motor Club has some check points to keep in mind:

- The Family Car — Check brakes — adjust wheel alignment — balance tires — inspect the radiator and cooling system — change oil and filter — lubricate — check, clean or replace air filter — inspect battery and cables — examine windshield wipers and adjust headlights.
- The Traveler — Be sure each driver has a valid driver's license and is covered with minimum amounts of auto insurance. Use traveler's checks. Don't forget your credit cards, necessary medications and prescriptions, sports equipment, beach accessories, camera and film.

- Glove Compartment — Do you have evidence of car ownership? What about insurance and registration? Be sure there's a first aid kit, flashlight, batteries, and maps. Tuck in a box of tissues and moist towelettes too. A notebook and ballpoint pen also come in handy.
- The Trunk — Maintain a fire extinguisher — a good spare tire — jack — tire changing tools — flares — V-belts for fan, generator and power steering. It might be a good idea to slip in some old clothes just in case you have to change a tire on the highway.
- The kids — Remember pillows, books, writing materials, games, a deck of cards, a few snacks and a thermos of juice or milk.

When you pack your car, try not to overload the trunk. Too much weight behind the rear wheels has a tendency to lift needed weight from the front wheels making steering more unreliable, according to a Chicago Motor Club spokesman.

And — don't overload a car-top carrier. This can make your car sway when you change lanes or round curves.

Be a good navigator and chart your course well before you leave home. Study the map carefully, marking unfamiliar exit and entrance ramps on expressways, or expected turn-offs on smaller roadways.

It helps to have one or two members of the family take charge of the map to assist the driver. Our 13-year-old Billy has become quite an expert at this.

Whenever possible, call ahead to make motel reservations well in advance — especially if you're planning to stop at popular areas.

Don't forget all the necessary things such as stopping deliveries of milk, mail and newspapers, locking the doors and windows, pulling the electrical plugs on appliances, and turning on the automatic timers for several lamps in your home.

Lock the front door — and have fun!

Days in Spain festival featured

St. Augustine plans birthday

by GLENN COUVILLON

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. — This oldest permanent settlement in the nation will be dressed in flags and flowers when it celebrates its 408th birthday during the Days in Spain Festival, Aug. 15-18.

Thousands of fiesta-goers enjoy a variety of foods, Spanish handicrafts and games sold from booths that line the narrow streets in the city's restoration district.

Authentically costumed Spanish and French soldiers cross swords in mock battle, reminiscent of the struggle between the two nations for the possession of Florida in 1565.

The festival also offers an opportunity for merrymakers to visit the restored and reconstructed buildings that are a part of Florida's continuing restoration program in the city of centuries.

THE MONTH of August also will include other summer festivals and celebrations throughout the "sunshine state."

On Aug. 4, in the small Northwest Florida town of Wausau, there will be a day-long, old-fashioned fun day festival.

In the truest of southern traditional celebrations, activities will include corn-pone baking, greased pole and hog calling contests, bull frog, gopher and horse races, plus a fish fry and a special program.

The elaborate Labor Day Festival in Daytona Beach is scheduled Aug. 25 to Sept. 4, to include the Miss Southland beauty pageant, dances, golf tournament, entertainment and fireworks display.

North of Daytona, Jacksonville Beach hosts the Five-Mile Marathon Beach Run, Aug. 26. The race is an open competition event for amateur runners, with five categories for men and one for women. Trophies are awarded to winners in each category.

Beautiful Cypress Gardens is the setting for the National Barefoot Skiing Championships, Aug. 11-12. Top barefoot skiers from throughout the United States vie for the national title at this popular Central Florida attraction.

Probably no other subject, with the exception of sun, sand and palm trees, inspires so much conversation and interest as does Florida fishing. More than 300 species of salt and freshwater fish abound in the state's waters, and fishing tournaments in Destin, Jacksonville Beach, Mount Dora, Sebastian Inlet and Panama City will run throughout most of the month.

THE LABOR DAY weekend will be the last big holiday for families to "get away from it all," and the Sunshine State offers extensive camping facilities ranging from modern, well-developed parks to remote retreats.

In many public and private areas, campers are free to enjoy the natural beauty of Florida's beaches, rivers, lakes and woodlands. Visitors may also pursue recreational activities such as swimming, boating, nature study and visits to areas of archaeological, geological and historical interest.

(Glenn Couvillon is a Florida travel writer.)

SPAIN IN FLORIDA — During the Days in Spain Festival, Aug. 15-18, in St. Augustine, authentically costumed Spanish and French soldiers will cross swords high atop the Castillo de San Marcos in mock battle to dramatize the struggle between the two nations for possession of Florida in 1565.

Crossing the border is an easy task

NEW YORK — If you're driving to Canada or Mexico this summer, you'll find crossing the border is easy — provided you have the proper documents with you.

If you don't have them, you're likely to find you'll have to delay your trip or, worse yet, cancel it, according to a leading auto insurer.

As an American citizen, you won't need a passport or visa. Even so, you should carry some proof of citizenship. A voter's registration card or a birth or baptismal certificate will do.

If you're a naturalized citizen, be sure you have with you papers attesting to the fact. And if you're a foreigner permanently residing in the United States, you should have your Alien Registration Receipt Card in your possession.

MEXICAN TOURIST rules are similar to those for Canada except for the requirement that every visitor 15 years of age or over carry an official Mexican Tourist Card, which is good for 180 days. Tourist cards are not required for visits of 72 hours or less.

Be sure to have your automobile registration with you. Your car won't be permitted across the border without it. If you're driving someone else's car, in addition to the registration certificate, you'll need a letter from the owner authorizing you to use the vehicle.

Before leaving on your trip, State Farm Mutual advises that you check with your insurance agent about your car's coverage.

If you're going to Canada, he'll arrange for you to receive a Non-Resident Interprovince Motor Vehicle Liability Insurance Card. In some Canadian provinces a car may be impounded if such proof of financial responsibility is not furnished in case of accident.

Most U.S.-issued automobile insurance is valid only within 10 miles of the Mexican side of the border. However, your insurance agent can arrange special coverage for you with a Mexican company.

While private passenger car insurance is not compulsory in Mexico, you shouldn't drive there without it, for an uninsured motorist who becomes involved in an accident south of the border is subject to "detainment." That means jail.

Guide lines

QUES. — We will be going to Panama in the fall. Can you tell me what kind of immunizations we will need?

ANS. — The Public Health Service recommends that you have typhoid, hepatitis and malaria immunizations.

QUES. — Can I mail some photo film home while I am still in another country?

ANS. — Yes — if you mail it properly. Obtain a special mailer from the film manufacturer or processing lab. Mark the outside wrapper with this statement: "Undeveloped photographic film of U.S. manufacture — examine with care."

QUES. — I have relatives in Finland and hope to visit there this fall. Could you tell me what shots I will need — what's a good hotel in Helsinki and how far the airport is from the city?

ANS. — Unfortunately, fall isn't the best time to visit Finland — it's a bit rainy from September to November. But the Finns are hospitable folk, so don't let a little moisture stop you. You need no shots to travel from the USA to Finland. The Inter-Continental, Kalastajatorppa, Marski and Hospiz Hotels are all fine. Most reasonable is the Hospiz — where a single with bath is $9-$11, and a double with bath is $14-$20, including breakfast and service charge. The Helsinki airport is 12 miles from the city.

QUES. — We're honeymooning in Hawaii and we want to stay at a really fancy hotel and live it up! Any suggestions?

ANS. — One of the most elegant hotels in the islands is Mauna Kea Beach Hotel on the Big Island. The food is terrific too and there's a great beach.

QUES. — Can you tell us some inexpensive restaurants in Paris? My husband won a free trip there so our hotel and flight are paid for — but we're wondering about eating.

ANS. — Lucky you! Write to Air France, 2010 Prudential Plaza, Chicago 60601, right away for a free copy of a wonderful booklet, "Inexpensive Paris Restaurants Near Famous Monuments."

San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego or combo.

KANDY DANCER and the Temple of the Tooth. In August the annual Perahera festival, which dates back about 2,000 years and honors the Tooth Relic of the Buddha, will be held here.

Ceylon offers the opportunity

Want to REALLY know an elephant?

by JACK P. GABRIEL

KANDY, CEYLON (SRI LANKA) — If you're fond of elephants, as most people are, and want to get better acquainted with them than you can at a circus, head for Kandy, the charming hillside city on this island.

About noon each day, several elephants and their mahouts take a dip in the river just outside the city. They used to be working animals, who came to the river to cool off during the day. They're still working elephants, but now they earn their owners' living by going in and out of the water, which they love, and doing stunts for tourists' cameras. If you feel so inclined, you can go right into the river with them, and what a sight that will make when you show slides of it to your friends.

This country's real name is now The Republic of Sri Lanka, changed back to that ancient name in May, 1972. It will probably be many years before people stop calling it Ceylon. But almost everyone who comes here visits Kandy, which is just 72 miles from Colombo, now the capital and the largest city on the island.

KANDY WAS once a capital city, and today it is to Ceylon what Kyoto is to Japan, although it does not resemble that city physically, except in charm and ambience. It has become a cliché for visitors to say that Kandy is dandy, but that's exactly what it is.

It has a very distinct personality, something that is felt and appreciated by all who go there. Kandy stamps itself immediately on the awareness of everyone fortunate enough to get to know it as something special.

Oddly, it isn't the town itself that creates the effect. Its buildings are old and ramshackle in the Asian manner, only two or three stories high. It is the hills that surround it, enclosing it tenderly as if Nature gives it special protection, that gives Kandy its unique quality. The artificial, mile-long lake in the center, is the warp and woof of the city.

One of Kandy's greatest attractions is the annual Perahera, the most splendid festival in Asia, and attended by visitors from all over the world. This year it will take place on the ten days between Aug. 6 and the 16th. As it is the grandest spectacle of its kind, tourists crowd in to witness at least part of it.

Its origin dates back about 2,000 years, and it honors the Tooth Relic of the Buddha, which is housed in Kandy's famed Temple of the Tooth, another tourist attraction. The procession is comprised of a hundred richly decorated elephants, 1,000 dancers in fine costumes, drummers and the bearers of flaming torches, whip crackers and musicians. Although there are countless processions, festivals and other spectacles in the world, nothing quite equals the Perahera in Kandy. It's also another fine opportunity to get a closeup of some elephants, and never will you see them decorated in a manner more dazzling.

THE LARGEST hotels in the city are old ones, but quite comfortable and most reasonably priced. One of them, The Queens, is well over 100 years old, and was once the social headquarters for the tea planters in the area, for tea is grown on the nearby mountains.

There are some smaller new ones, and the Frangipani Hotel, at 80 Ampitiya Road, is operated by a Mr. De Silva, his wife and daughters. They give a very personal service, and because there are only 11 rooms, get to know their guests, a great break for the latter. A double room costs only $8 for bed and breakfast, and a bit more for full board.

In the mountains 17 miles away is the brand new Hunas Falls Hotel, which affords modern luxury and an unforgettable panorama for just $18 for a double room with breakfast. Most of the guests spend their days shopping and sightseeing in Kandy, but this highly recommended hotel is one of Ceylon's best.

The Botanical Gardens in Peradeniya, four miles from Kandy, are exquisitely designed. The palm-lined curved roads, the fabulous orchid house, and the towering bamboo groves along the river combine with the numerous spice trees and all flowers indigenous to Ceylon, and elsewhere, to make this an enchanted area. Dating back more than 600 years, you'll never see finer gardens than these.

NOT FAR from Kandy are the ruins of the ancient city of Polonnaruwa, which is one of the three similar archeological wonders of Ceylon, or of the world. Polonnaruwa's remains are more than 900 years old, but will give you a good idea that people lived very well in those far away times. The evidence is unmistakable.

You can drive into the mountains near Kandy, and see the tea plantations that often cover them. You can even visit one of the numerous tea factories and learn all about the amazing processing that takes only between three and four days from the time the leaves are picked to turn them into a finished product, ready for you.

They get around

Washington (UPI) — Of all vacation trips taken by Americans, fully one-fourth are outside the continental United States, according to figures compiled by the American Automobile Association (AAA).

These showed that 7 per cent of all U.S. vacation trips were to Canada, 3 per cent to Mexico, 1 per cent to Alaska, 2 per cent to Hawaii, 6 per cent to Europe and 6 per cent to other foreign destinations.

Offering standard and deluxe accommodations and full-course breakfasts daily, the bed 'n breakfast packages are priced from $56.50 per person for eight days at the Beachcomber in Daytona Beach.

The airline has vacations of this kind in Los Angeles, New Orleans and Seattle and at most of its sun destinations — Florida, Jamaica, the Bahamas, Mexico and the Virgin Islands.

Among the most unusual is an eight day, seven night bed 'n breakfast vacation offering two destinations for the price of one. Combining a four-night holiday in Miami Beach with a three-night vacation at a selected resort in Jamaica, Puerto Rico, the Bahamas or the Virgin Islands, the package is priced at $88 per person.

All rates quoted are based on double occupancy and do not include air fare. Up to two children under 12 who share a room with their parents get free accommodations — with a small charge for breakfast.

NEW IMAGE FOR A NEW AIRLINE

BOAC and British European Airways have combined with the new name of British Airways — and they'll have a brand new look.

Based on the national colors, red, white and blue, the "new look" features a streamlined combination of the present BOAC and BEA insignia, a modern symbol evolved from the Speedbird of BOAC forming a section of the quartered Union Jack of BEA. The existing Speedbird symbol will appear ahead of the name British Airways on all aircraft. Airline officials say it will be three years or more before all its symbols are changed.

LE GRAND HOTEL FAVORS AMERICANS

In order to offset the results of the dollar devaluation, Le Grand Hotel on Paris' Place de l'Opera (and home of the famous Cafe de la Paix) is offering a 20 per cent discount on official room rates until Sept. 2. A double room with breakfast included, formerly $35, is now only $28.

Says Robert Vernay, general manager: "The elegant service and personalized attention of Le Grand Hotel remain the same as always."

The hotel recently underwent a multi-million dollar modernization which makes it one of the most up-to-date in Paris.

DETROIT (UPI) — Complete failure of a car's turn signals generally is the result of a defective flasher unit. The flasher is easily replaceable, as it is a metal plug-in unit, about the size of a prescription box, generally located under the dashboard behind the parking brake.

Discover a little Illinois along the Prairie Path.

If your everyday life is inseparable from steel and concrete and glass, come find a new world on the Illinois Prairie Path.

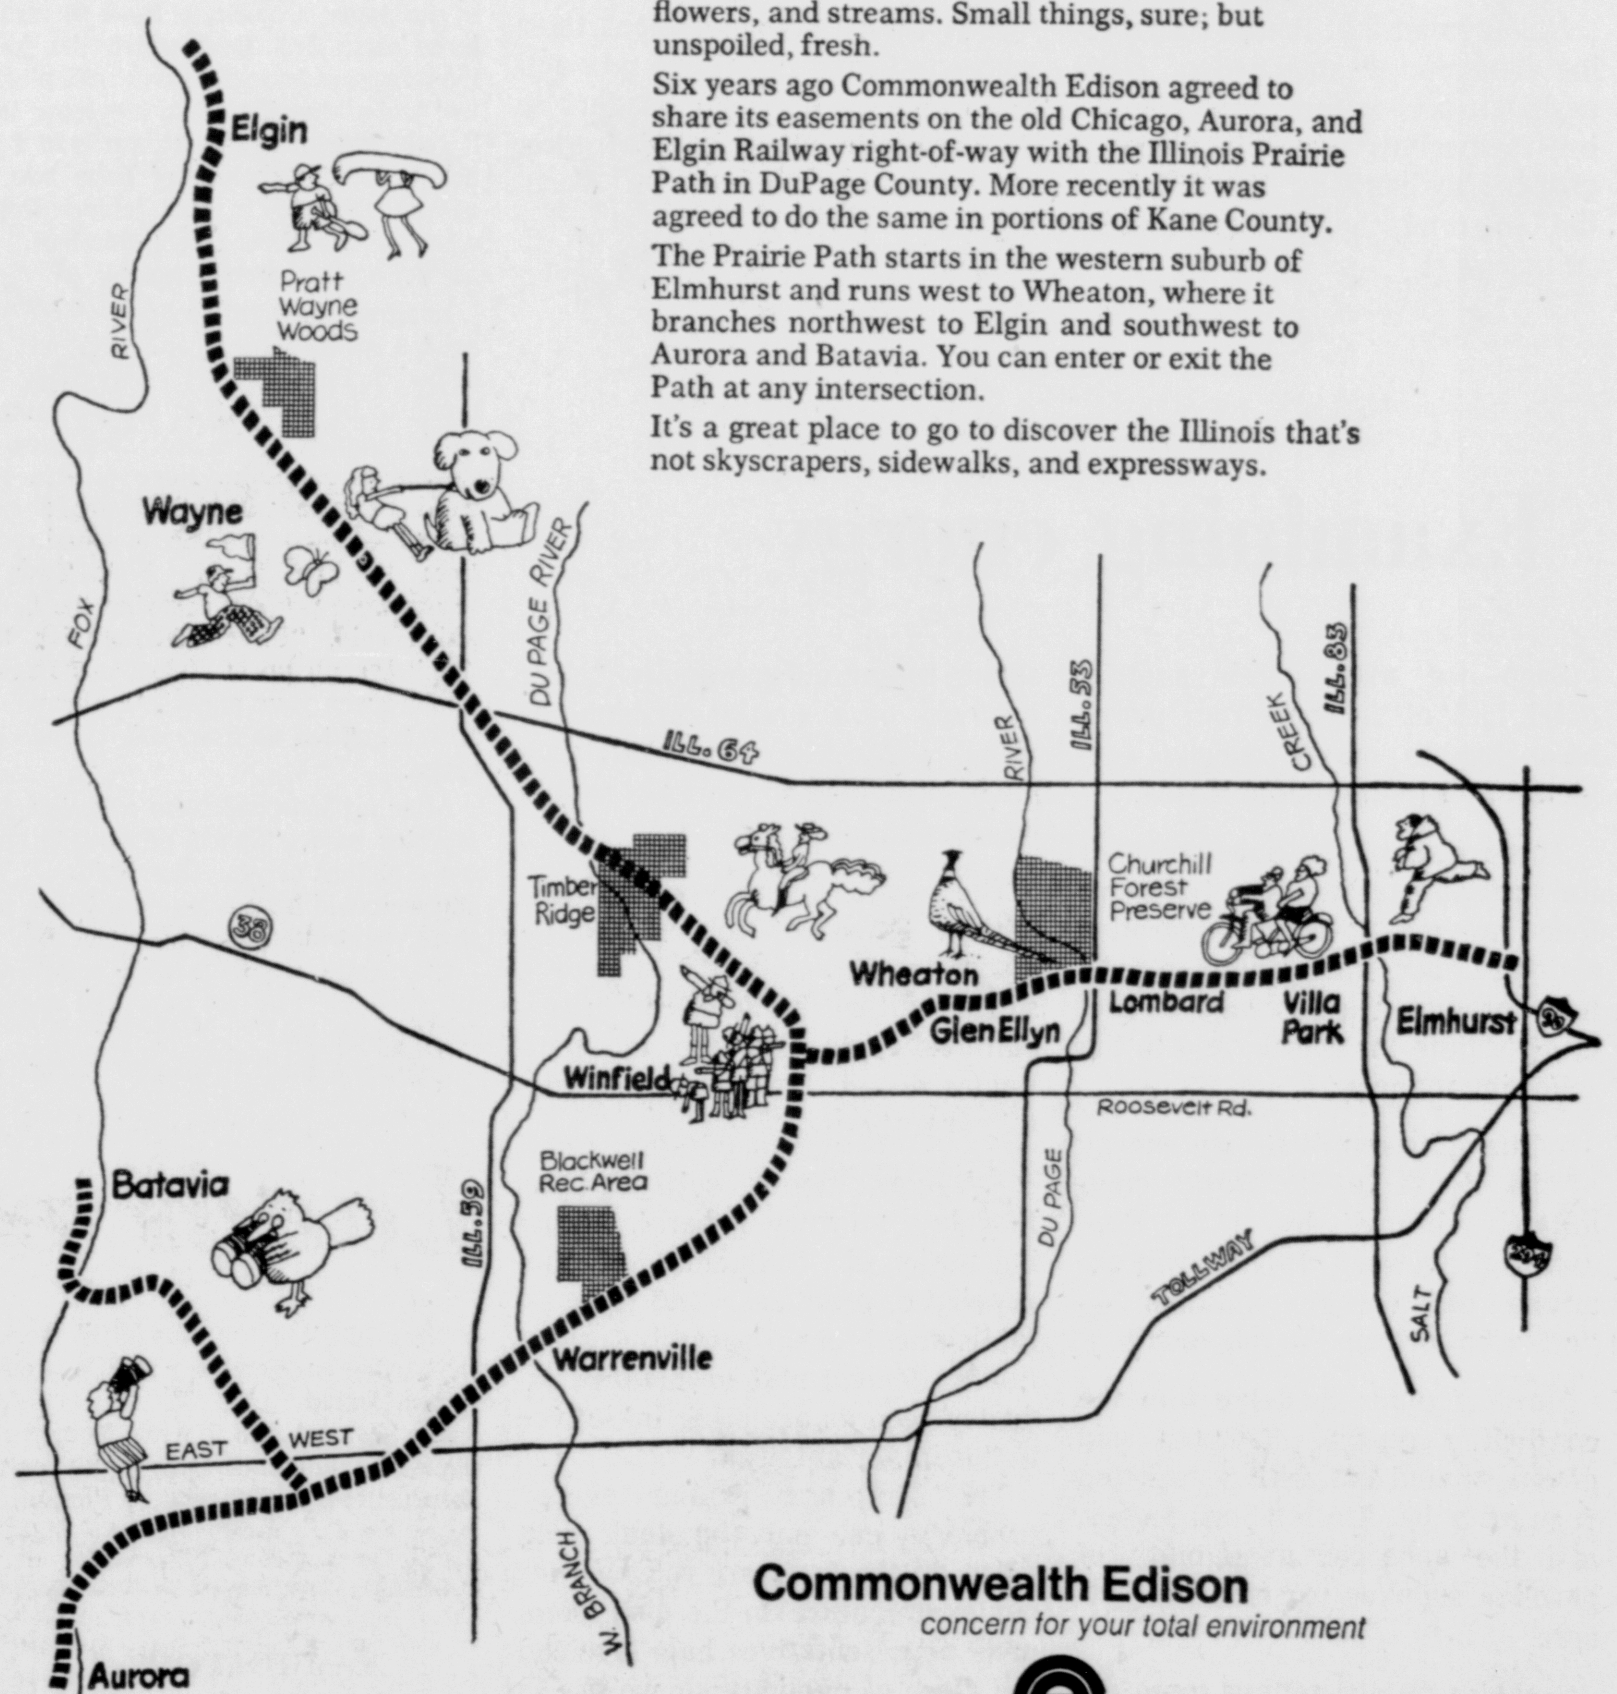

Bring your bike, or just your walking shoes.

And get ready for 40 miles of trees, hills, birds, flowers, and streams. Small things, sure; but unspoiled, fresh.

Six years ago Commonwealth Edison agreed to share its easements on the old Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin Railway right-of-way with the Illinois Prairie Path in DuPage County. More recently it was agreed to do the same in portions of Kane County.

The Prairie Path starts in the western suburb of Elmhurst and runs west to Wheaton, where it branches northwest to Elgin and southwest to Aurora and Batavia. You can enter or exit the Path at any intersection.

It's a great place to go to discover the Illinois that's not skyscrapers, sidewalks, and expressways.

Let's challenge Postal Service

Get ready for the Big Sell from the U. S. Postal Service, folks.

We are shortly to be regaled with facts and figures telling us how much mail delivery has been improved since the Post Office went from being a department of the U.S. Government to an "independent agency."

Never mind the Christmas cards which arrived on Jan. 3 — or the notice of a business meeting which arrived the day following the meeting — or the electric bill payment which took six days to go cross-town.

We, and the U.S. Congress, are going to be told again how much better our postal service is now than it was when it was bogged down in government bureaucracy.

Never mind that dim memory in your mind that when you were a youngster, the mailman used to come twice a day, and that hardly anybody ever asked, "Didn't you get my letter?" when they arrived with the five kids, the dog and Aunt Maude to spend the weekend.

We are also going to be told that in order to continue this overwhelming trend toward greater and greater service by the U.S. Postal Service, that we are going to have to cough up another 25 per cent to mail a simple letter.

Never mind that there is a growing network of independent businessmen across the country making themselves a goodly piece of change by handling the dregs of the U.S. mail, the third and fourth-class variety, and doing it more cheaply and more efficiently than the U.S. Postal System.

Never mind that bunch of upstarts claiming they could just as well handle first-class mail for half the price the U.S. Postal Service is going to ask — 10 cents a letter, folks.

Sometime in September, the U.S. Postal Service will go, cap in hand, to the U.S. Congress and explain humbly that as much as it has improved the mail service in the last two years, it can't really continue that fantastic record without increasing its income by 25 per cent, two cents per clip for every man, woman and child who has to mail a letter.

From the crowd in the Congress, there will come a shrill voice of protest from U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, who has been shouting into the wind for years that the independent postal service might be able to do it better, and cheaper.

The most recent rate increase sought by the Postal Service will surely prompt Crane once again to raise his voice in a plea to give the independents a chance — take the restrictions off the delivery of first-class mail and see if they can't improve service.

It is time that others lent their voices to Crane's plea. We now add ours, and we urge our readers to do likewise in letters to their representatives and senators in Washington.

Examining energy

Soon we may catch another quick look at the monstrous power belonging to major energy conglomerates in the United States.

There couldn't be a better time for such an examination. Today we face a not-too-severe gasoline shortage, but this winter experts have predicted a shortage of fuel oil. It's time for a look, and in the following manner:

—The subcommittee on energy of the House Public Works committee, chaired by U.S. Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., will examine the energy situation — "crisis or coverup" — this month.

Howard plans to delve into the conflicting reports of doom and gloom ground out with a lockstep regularity by the oil companies, and the apparent availability of gasoline supplies to some marketeers.

—We're finally getting some action from the Federal Trade Commission. An extensive study, finally released after much prodding by U.S. Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich.,

shows major oil companies "have behaved in a similar fashion as would a classical monopolist: they have attempted to increase profits by restricting output."

The report will serve as the basis for an intensive look at the industry by the Senate Investigations subcommittee. It could lead to recommendations that the oil companies divest themselves of certain operations.

—A class action suit filed by Florida's attorney general, accusing major oil companies of monopolistic practices, and the establishment of a special Cost of Living Council unit to audit oil industry records are other initiatives in this important area.

The symptoms of our energy problems can only be dealt with when all the facts are released for our examination. In the past, company representatives have avoided the glare of publicity; if we are to develop a badly needed national energy policy, it must be with their complete willingness to tell all about their industry.

'Dundee Road needs help'

It is with deep regret that I'm writing this letter. I have moved to Buffalo Grove from Philadelphia three weeks ago. Since that time, I have seen three horrible automobile accidents. I realize that accidents are commonplace in large metropolitan areas. But the alarming aspect is that these three accidents have occurred on Dundee Rd., just east of Arlington Heights Rd. This one mile stretch of road has caused, in the past three weeks, no less than one death and several injuries.

The most alarming and tragic variable in these accidents was the condition of Dundee Rd. at the specific accident points. The road is barely wide enough to support two-way traffic and I feel it is for this reason that the accidents are occurring at an alarming rate of frequency.

Granted, most accidents are caused by careless driving habits, but must we, as residents of Buffalo Grove, be subjected to an obviously unsafe road to compound our dangerous traffic problems. There are a few questions that must be answered. Why haven't these roads been completed?—Why aren't there adequate safety warnings on these roads? — But most importantly, why haven't the citizens of Buffalo Grove or the town government questioned the condition of their roads? Without seeming presumptuous, doesn't everyone want to be proud of their nice suburban community or do they want to remain being residents of a "death trap village."

I sincerely hope this letter will be printed and also other letters pertaining to this problem. We must get rid of this "Dundee Rd. Menace" or we will have more accidents, and possibly more lives, on our conscience.

Cubs angered by story

We spoke of writing to you before but never got angry enough to do it. July 4th was the straw that broke the camel's back.

That day we had our first Independence Day parade in Rolling Meadows, with many floats that received as much or more applause as the one mentioned in the paper. Cub Scout Pack 96 also entered their first float which the judges thought good enough to win first place in the junior division. Your reporter found it good enough to rate 11 words in a tiny article at the bottom of page two, we quote, "Named in the junior division were — Cub Scout Troop 96, first." We are not a troop, we are a pack.

Imagine the hurt feelings of 50 boys, aged 8 to 11, leaders and everyone who helped build our float. Everybody was proud to be a part of it though it meant quick tempers in the heat, lost sleep and gallons of Kool-Aid. None of this mattered because when the parade came down Meadow Drive our float had moved from 13th position to first. Two cub scouts were proudly carrying the banner which said, "First Place Junior Division." We all knew at last our Pack 96 would grace your pages. As always, you all but omitted us from your parade coverage.

After a phone call from a leader, your reporter said, "Space permitting, we'll run a picture of your float Friday." That day we could have been on a whole page since you printed page two twice.

Everytime we have sent information and pictures, Pack 96 gets filed under W for Wastebasket.

Cub Scout Pack 96 thanks "Akela" that another paper finds our news worthy.

Who would have foreseen a few short months ago the lowly "spud" dug from the good earth would command outrageous prices from 23 cents to 25 cents per pound? Meat is also beyond the housewife's now flattened purse. Beef, those four legged animals, haven't the sense to realize they outweigh, pricewise, the body of a human being. The chemicals of the human body I believe, are valued at 98 cents. Wouldn't these almost

A satisfied customer for Levitt

I read with great interest your recent article on Levitt homes and the homeowners. Having just purchased one of the Levitt quadplexes in Schaumburg, we were worried about repairs to our home that we felt were the responsibility of the builder. On both the walk-through and 30 day inspections, we listed all the items we were concerned about. So far, they have done a satisfactory job on those sacred (pricewise) beasts hold their heads higher, look down their expensive noses at the common man? When the prices of meat and potatoes soared the housewife turned to fish, eggs, macaroni and rice. What happened? Prices jumped out of bounds. Fresh vegetables as lettuce: 59 cents per head, beets that we would have refused to buy last year for 30 cents per bunch now 49 cents, these are ridiculously placed in the same catethings they have repaired. I have also found Mr. Franklin difficult to reach but most accommodating and pleasant when I have talked to him. I think he is doing a good job with the staff allotted to him and the number of jobs he must service.

All in all, Levitt has given me confidence that eventually all our complaints will be taken care of and I will remain a satisfied customer.

Needs a new sign

Because I travel down Rand Road toward the Mount Prospect Plaza almost daily, I would like to comment about the traffic light and left turn lane going into the Plaza.

It would be a great help and an aid to cars turning left if the "Obey your signal only" sign was changed to one which reads "Left turn on green light or arrow."

Many drivers sit through a green light waiting for an arrow, which they may have seen at one time or another. Some do not seem to know that a green light means "go" also.

Speed reading: handle with care

Back in the Depression days when I was a fourth grader the school I went to didn't have enough books to go around nor money to buy any more so we had to share. And I got the reputation for having the fastest eyeballs in class because I always finished reading a page while my seatmate was still plugging away at the first sentence.

Ever since, I've been kind of smug about how fast I can read — and then I heard about a 13-year-old kid in California who reads 20,000 words a minute. To demonstrate his ability, he zipped through a 231-page book, "From Slave to Statesman — the Life and Times of Frederick Douglass," in four minutes.

I wasn't exactly jealous, you understand, but I grabbed the first book in sight that seemed about the same size and discovered that it took me 3½ minutes just to turn the pages. Further deflating my ego was the fact that the kid's teacher has bursts of reading speed up to 160,000 words a minute but I think that must have been a typographical error because she'd singe her eyebrows reading that fast.

Maybe the book I was experimenting with threw my timing off. I didn't have an autobiography of Frederick Douglass handy, so I grabbed Helen Gurley Brown's "The Cosmo Girl's Guide to the New Etiquette," and if you want some really fast reading, that's it.

Just sailing through it to see how long it took me to turn pages I picked up a few tips on Starting a Conversation and a few more on Twenty-Five Thoughtful Things to do For a Man in the Bedroom. Going as fast as I was, though, everything kind of ran together and I still don't know if starting a conversation is one of the 25 things to do.

That's one of the problems for an untrained speed reader like me — I sometimes miss the vital connection between two facts.

Just the other day, for instance, I was reading a news story about a big drug bust where the police tagged a bunch of juveniles and one adult female. My speedy eyes grabbed the facts and a quote from the sheriff and I came up with the woman's name and the sheriff saying, "Biggest bust ever."

It also does not do to speed read knitting instructions or how to assemble a doll house.

Flash reading instructions for knitting argyle socks is how psychedelic was born and my brother never would wear the things. As for assembling a doll house in time for Christmas Eve, it doesn't matter how I read the directions, the house still comes out with a door in the roof and a decided starboard list.

Finally, I'm sure those 25 bedroom thoughty things should be read slowly and carefully. Racing through them tends to give the impression they should be done simultaneously and I don't think that's what Helen Gurley meant.

gory as artichokes and avocados. Marie Antoinette said, "If they can't eat bread, let them eat cake." Who wants to eat cake for breakfast? Of course, taking a piece of toast from the toaster, placing it on a plate, you have to wipe off the excessive moisture. Take two or three slices of bread, squeeze them in your hand, makes a good spit ball, expensive, true, but spit ball yes. When will these soaring prices end? Perhaps it is better for the figure to have to tighten the belt, but, what about those of us, whose belt doesn't need tightening?

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK — David Rockefeller, just back from opening financial doors to China, has worked banking miracles in globe-girdling missions the last six months.

The Chase Manhattan Bank chairman re-established banking relations with the two biggest Socialist powers in the world, strengthened ties with Russia's satellites and, at the same time, made a strong bid to regain New York banking supremacy from archrival First National City Bank.

In his first interview since returning from Peking as the accredited representative of the Bank of China in the United States, Rockefeller obviously was pleased with his success in unfreezing a banking cold war which existed for decades.

"I'm very encouraged," said Rockefeller, a soft-spoken, genial man who tends toward dark suits, red ties and blue shirts.

"In every case we've been invited by the Socialist governments and have been warmly and generously received even though I head a large capitalist bank and my name is closely identified with capitalism."

IN JANUARY, Rockefeller toured Hungary, Yugoslavia, Romania and Poland, cementing banking relationships in the satellite countries.

In May, after months of negotiations with Russian officials, he opened up the first American banking office in the Soviet Union in more than 50 years.

Early this month, following a 10-day visit to China and talks with Premier Chou En-lai and his aides, Rockefeller's bank became a representative of the Bank of China, the first such East-West contact since the Chinese Revolution 24 years ago.

"In a matter of days, after an official exchange of letters of intention, we will be handling remittances from the United States to China, and travelers' letters of credit. Hopefully, we'll progress from there," he said.

What is the next target, Rockefeller was asked.

"Actually, I do plan another trip to another Socialist country," Rockefeller said. "Late in September, after the World Bank International Monetary Fund meeting in Nairobi, I will visit Algeria. It trades heavily in natural gas, you know."

IN TOURS THROUGH Shanghai, Peking, Siam and Hangchow, Rockefeller visited Chinese banks and noted little similarity to American banks. "There really is no mechanization beyond the abacus which, I must admit, they use with great speed and accuracy. No computers. I didn't even see a typewriter in one branch I visited but, then they also have a much simpler system to support," he said.

Asked to compare the Russians and Chinese as negotiators, Rockefeller said both were tough bargainers. "But the Soviets make acceptable deals when they want something," he said. "We've worked out two or three with them and, while they didn't bring great profits, they were attractive. I suspect the Chinese also will be flexible."

Are no-down-payment home buys wise?

by MERLE E. DOWD

Q. "We have our eye on a house that would cost about $15,000 — available with no down payment. All we would have to pay would be about $400 in closing costs plus the first month's payment on the loan and 1/12th of the estimated taxes and insurance. Payments plus utilities would cost a little more than rent, but we'd be buying the house. Do you think this is a good idea? Our combined income is just under $9,000 gross a year."

A. Two problems exist in house deals with no down payment: (1) Equity build-up from each month's payments are so small that very little of the house becomes yours for years. (2) Due to the selling and title conveyance costs, a house will be worth less than you owe on it for 5 to 15 years. Without inflation effects, the Federal Housing Administration figures 22 years will elapse before the loan principal is paid down to the net value of the house.

Inflation has rescued many a no-down buyer by increasing the price of the house. Recently a couple bought a house for $16,500 on a no-down deal. If they were to attempt to sell it within a year or two, it might bring $15,000 after deducting sales commission, prepayment penalty, excise tax, and discount points to arrange a new loan. If they were forced to sell, they could end up owing $1,000.

Unless you are sure you will not be moving or you plan to add to the house to increase its value, the potential loss in a resale could cost you more than continuing to rent.

Q. "Now that I've seen the price of gasoline rise nearly 4 cents a gallon in the past month, I'm beginning to get the message about engine size and fuel economy. But, how small a car should I buy? Are small cars safe on freeways?"

A. Auto weight makes a tremendous difference in gasoline cost. Changing from a so-called full-size car to an intermediate may gain a difference of 3 to 6 miles per gallon. For example, the Environmental Protection Agency calculates that if all the cars on the road weighed 2,500 pounds each instead of 3,500, the country could save 2.1 million barrels of oil every day — that's as much as the country can expect to pump out of the Alaskan North Slope oil fields.

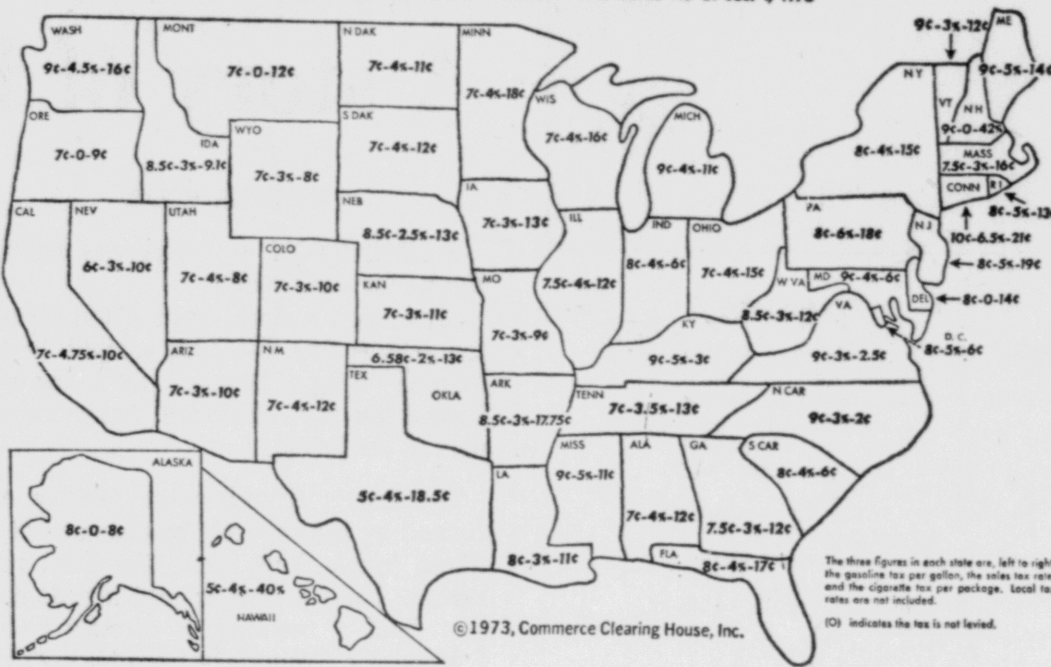

For a change in gasoline mileage to mean real savings, take a big step down. Smaller cars are definitely the trend of the future — cars that get 20 to 30 miles per gallon rather than 10 to 15. Look for cars with engines under 2,000 cubic centimeters for real economy.

Are small cars safe? In collisions with big cars small cars come off second best. But, regular-size cars come off second best in a collision with a truck. Any car loses when it hits anything solid — like a bridge abutment. With more and more small cars on the road, your chances of coming out even with a car your own size are increasing. You're safe in any car only when you avoid collisions completely.

Q. "How can we figure whether we owe too much money? I mean, what should we compare our debts to?"

A. For some families, any debt other than their house mortgage loan is too much. Other limits commonly used are: (1) Compare the total amount owed on a car, furniture, and similar short-term credit to your net worth. You figure your

STATE GASOLINE, SALES AND CIGARETTE TAX RATES AS OF JULY 1, 1973

There's no tax shortage...

Energy shortage? Gasoline shortage? Perhaps. But one thing's for sure... there's no tax shortage as vacationers touring the country are finding out, Commerce Clearing House (CCH) reports.

Visitors hitting the roads, rails or flying will discover that in several states at least, they'll be paying more in terms of sales, gasoline and cigarette taxes than they did last year — as the "homefolks" in these jurisdictions well know.

Here's a rundown of tax increases vacationers will face if they return to last year's spa: Arkansas (gasoline); California (sales); Colorado (cigarette); District of Columbia (sales and cigarette); Idaho (cigarette); Indiana (sales); Michigan (gasoline); Mississippi (gasoline and cigarette); and South Carolina (gasoline).

One glad note, according to CCH, is that visitors to Connecticut will benefit from a lower sales tax rate when they purchase those traditional souvenirs and other sundry items in the Constitution State.

CCH cautioned that travelers should also consider the admissions, parimutuel and alcoholic beverage taxes imposed by states they visit as well as local sales, gasoline and cigarette levies which lurk in many corners of the nation.

Hazy Phase IV to be unveiled within days

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Within a matter of days, American consumers and businessmen will be governed by a new set of economic rules: Phase IV of President Nixon's economic game-plan.

Barring some unexpected complications, such as a worsening of the President's illness, the latest attempt to stabilize the nation's explosive economy will be announced sometime this week.

White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon approved some parts of the program from his hospital bed Saturday and would make more decisions early this week.

THE ACTUAL announcement probably will be made by Nixon's top economic advisers: Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Cost of Living Council (COLC) Director John T. Dunlop and Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

The President's action will come on the heels of a price freeze that has been in effect since June 13.

The freeze barred firms from hiking prices above the level they were charging on June 13, no matter how much their costs have increased in the meantime. In Phase IV, however, prices will be allowed to rise by an amount yet undetermined.

Mauck target of two suits

State Insurance director Fred Mauck has taken a number of insurance firms to task for their advertising practices. Now he is the target of two suits filed last week by one of these companies, the Country Life Insurance Co., based in Bloomington.

The suits, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, seek an injunction against Mauck's June 28 cease and desist order which halted the use of an advertisement, and $250,000 in damages.

"We believe the actions of the director, without notice or warning to Country Life, was capricious censorship of a legitimate advertisement," said a Country Life spokesman.

The advertisement in question was not designed to scare people into buying insurance, the Country Life spokesman said. Mauck had charged that the firm's ad, picturing a severely injured accident victim with the caption, "It Could Happen to You," is a scare tactic.

Old hand keeping grounds for Sox

At White Sox Park groundskeeping is more than just another menial, mundane job that has to be carried out. It's a family affair, and it can be a fine art if done correctly.

This becomes evident after a talk with Gene Bossard, who has been in charge of grounds at the south side arena since 1940, when he became the youngest head groundskeeper in the major leagues in history.

The post is nothing unique to Gene because the name Bossard has become most synonymous with groundskeeping. His father held the same job at Cleveland years ago, the same place where his two older brothers now keep the playing surface in order, and Gene's son Roger, a Vietnam war veteran and only 26 years old, is his father's assistant. So the occupation now has been passed down through three generations.

All that family tradition has helped the Bossards learn professionally, too. As has been pointed out, there are ways to manipulate a field to favor the home team and/or work against the visitors.

Bossard readily admits this although he and other groundskeepers can get a little evasive when it comes to specific means of controlling things for certain clubs.

This very topic will be covered on national television July 30 on Joe Garagiola's special 15-minute show that precedes NBC's Game of The Week every Monday night at 6:45.

"He (Garagiola) asked me how I help a sinker-ball pitcher and how to contain a team with a lot of speed," said Bossard.

"Well, I learned a lot about helping sinker-ball pitchers when Joe Horlen and Tommy John were here a few years ago, because they were both just that type. They got batters to beat the ball into the ground a lot. So, we'd soften the dirt in front of home plate to slow down grounders. If it were hard, a grounder might bounce up and be a two-base hit.

"Or, in the past when we had a fast team that could bunt (such as Chicago's last pennant winner in 1919) we'd make the foul lines high and sloping in a little to keep those bunts from going foul. If it's the other team that's fast and good bunters and we aren't, then it's just the opposite."

Taking an example from this year, Gene said that "a club like Oakland has more speed than usual with guys like (Bert) Campaneris and (Bill) North, so for them we soften the dirt around the baselines by wetting it a lot. This should be done particularly in the area of first base where they get their start (on stolen base attempts). If you can contain them just half a step it can mean a ball game because there are a lot of close bang-bang plays at second."

He also said there are ways of helping the outfielders. If they happen to be slower than average, the grass is kept high in the power alleys, which might keep a ball from rolling to the wall and make it a double instead of triple.

Of course, conditions are the same for both teams so scheming can backfire once in a while. But in the long run there are ways to help the home team. "It's all predicated on the type of club you have and the type you're playing," said Bossard. "What we do can change from one series to the next.

"You don't fool the opposition. They know when the foul lines are high or the grass is high and they play it accordingly. They might play in then. So the batter will forget the bunt and try to hit it past them."

It is obvious that how the grounds are kept is a factor in the giant chess-like game of strategy that is every game. And while Bossard is the most experienced and one of the best at manipulating a field, he's not the only one. It's a common practice for groundskeepers in the majors.

The work hours for Bossard and his staff of 18 men are unusual and changeable to say the least. They don't have to do much when the team is out of town or in the off-season, but when the Sox are at home they have a back-breaking schedule that makes up for it. Bossard earns when he calls the generous pay he draws.

"When we're home and playing night games I put in 16-17 hours a day," he says. "Roger and I are out here at 6 in the morning and the other workers are here by 7. And we're not through until the game is over." That's often about 11 p.m.

Besides watering, fertilizing, lining the field and generally getting it in perfect condition, Bossard's staff must of course be on call throughout every game to get the tarp on the field at a moment's notice in case of rain and loosen the infield dirt halfway through each contest.

So demanding is the schedule that Gene says he often sheds a lot of poundage during the season. This year his weight has dropped from 210 to 175 since spring training began.

His vacation is from November through January every year before he hustles to Florida to get five spring training fields in shape. Then he's at Sox park in March to get ready for a new season.

There are differing opinions and theories as to type of grass favored by different groundskeepers and how to keep it up best. It can be quite a technical business.

"Some top experts say the best time to water is in the heat of the sun, but you lose 40 per cent efficiency watering at 3 or 4 o'clock," said Bossard. "Besides, the players will be out soon after that. So we water early in the morning and then wet the infield after infield practice."

Maybe suburban lawn growers could take a tip or two from the long-time Sox employee.

He says fertilization, determining quality of grass, depends on three ingredients — nitrogen, potash and phosphorous. Phosphorous is for color, nitrogen for growth and potash for root system.

The Sox also have a $5400 electric sweeper to clean off the artificial turf which was installed in the infield only in 1969. It takes an hour a day to carpet-sweep.

Some new parks, especially in the National League, have all artificial turf except for sliding pits. It would seem this would subtract a lot of work from groundskeepers' jobs, but not so. Some of Bossard's counterparts say there is as much if not more work with synthetic turf. There is still cleaning, the batting cage, foul lines and a tarp to worry about.

So if the Sox ever cover their whole field with artificial sod, Bossard still won't have to worry about being phased out of a job.

In his 33 years with the club, Bossard has so many memories of so many teams, players and games that he can hardly begin talking about them all in one day. But summing up he said pro ballplayers generally are not temperamental prima donnas as their image sometimes depicts them.

"They're the easiest people to get along with I've ever known," claims Gene. "I can't remember any difficult ones. We've got a great bunch of guys here.

"I've enjoyed this job all the time I've been here, but even more the last couple of years than before when the team was down for a while. There's nothing like winning to keep everyone happy. And Chuck Tanner keeps everyone loose and together.

"My work is pretty much the same every day but it's not monotonous. It's always an enjoyable, healthy job."

WITH LOVING CARE, Gene Bossard, Chicago White Sox head groundskeeper, makes sure the field is in good shape prior to a recent game.

Gast hurls locals into state meet

Irving Lake wins district title

It would have been ridiculous to have thought the Irving Lake All-Stars would bomb everybody in their drive to another state Babe Ruth Senior championship.

They outclassed their first two opponents with a combined total of 24 runs and 26 hits compared to their foes' combined one run and seven hits.

However, Sunday's District V title game saw the boys from Irving Lake get just five hits at the Brookfield site against the hosting team. "It was a tough ball game," admitted head coach Lou Bocci.

Still, Irving Lake — this hot-hitting club made up of four teams, two of which reside in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg — remained just hot enough to accomplish its third win in the double elimination tourney.

Spreading the offensive glory around and receiving outstanding pitching from Ken Gast, the Irving Lakers advanced to this weekend's state tournament with a 6-2 win over Brookfield.

The locals broke out in front right away with single runs in the first and second innings. Following Keith Steelman's misplayed drive and Jeff Chiarugi's walk, Tray Clark lined a hit to center to make it 1-0.

Randy Anderson walked in the second. After a fine sacrifice bunt by Jim Brown and a bloop single by Gast, Greg Kindred singled in run No. 2 with a shot to left field.

Gast, a hard-throwing lefty, had his trouble right after the second. The top of the third saw Brookfield tag him for a leadoff homer, followed by two walks and a hit.

"At the time it was a little hairy," said Bocci, who contemplated taking out his pitcher. "But we got a double play and got out of it (the jam)."

Jeff Ironside, who with Steelman had been the hitting stars of the first two games, went into the hole between third and short and scooped up the grounder. Then the Irving Lake third baseman tagged the runner and whipped it over to first.

"That kid really looked tough for a 16-year-old," added Bocci.

Ironside also figured in the go-ahead run in the four-run sixth inning. Two hit batsmen and a walk loaded the bases for the youngster from the Hoffman Estates team. With the count 3-and-2 on Jeff, he fouled off a couple of pitches from the mainly fastball throwing Brookfield hurler, then drew ball four. His RBI walk made it 3-2.

Steelman, who had held a silent bat up to this time, socked a single to center field to score two more. Chiarugi drove in the final tally with an infield hit.

Gast, who had settled down after the tense third inning, went the distance for a three-hitter. He struck out 10 and "got better as he went along," according to Bocci.

"I knew they were going to be good," he said of his tourney team, "but I didn't think they were that good. We've got five kids that either are on the verge of getting a scholarship or signing (with the pros).

Bocci tabbed Steelman, who blasted three homers and a couple of doubles among his many hits, as the top player of the three-game series. "Following closely behind were Ironside and Chiarugi," said Bocci.

"I think we have more depth and just a little more speed (than last year's championship team). I thought we might have lost some of last year's power, but now I think we've got more power, too.

"One question mark is depth of pitching," he continued, thinking ahead to the Chicago Heights hosted state finals this weekend. "We've got three ... I think we've got five. That's the key."

Rebels sweep Oak Lawn 3-0, 10-0

The Northwest Rebels pounded out 20 hits and scored 13 runs as they demolished Oak Lawn in a doubleheader sweep, 3-0 and 10-0, Sunday at Schaumburg High School.

The double win lengthened the Rebels' lead over New Trier, which lost over the weekend and was supplanted by upstart Cragin in second place in the North Division of the Greater Midwest Semi-Pro League. Skokie, which leads the South Division, will collide with the Rebels in a showdown for league supremacy Saturday.

The Rebels' bats were a bit restless in the opener, but they came to life for 10 runs in the nightcap. They didn't waste any time getting started, either, as Wally Weiner led off the game with a triple and was doubled home by Mike Wulbecker.

Walks to Dean Sheridan and Dave Lundstedt filled the bases before Frank May singled home Wulbecker as the Rebels took a 2-0 lead.

Four runs came across in the fourth when George Kinsey singled, Ray Gross walked and Wulbecker's base hit scored one. Mark Frase's double drove in two more and May then delivered his second run-scoring single.

Weiner walked and, two outs later, was singled in by Lundstedt as the Rebels widened their advantage to 7-0 after six innings.

In the seventh, singles by Kinsey and Gross were followed by a walk to Weiner, loading the bases. Frase then knocked in one run with a single and Sheridan's base hit scored two more.

Rick Peekel hurled 4 2/3 innings of perfect baseball before he gave up the first of Oak Lawn's two hits. Peekel struck out seven and did not walk a batter as he evened his record at 2-2 on the season.

Lions capture 3 wins in weekend twinbills

Logan Square's Lions ran their record to 22-18 with three victories against only one loss in a pair of doubleheaders over the weekend.

Saturday the Lions defeated Lane Tech of Chicago 5-2 before dropping a 6-1 decision. Then Logan Square's bats exploded as Elgin suffered two losses, 8-6 and 13-4 Sunday. All four games were played at the Lions' home field at St. Viator High School.

Easily the most notable occurrence of the weekend was Logan Square's eight-run first inning in the second game of the Sunday twinbill. The first eight Lions who batted scored, and Elgin did not retire a man until the 11th batter.

Bob Foster led off with a base hit and was tripled home by Mark Rickerson. Rickerson scored when Steve Bobowski reached on an error and Jim Bucaro's double brought in another.

After Stan Bobowski walked and Pat

Rooney was hit by a pitch, Ed Collins walked to force one in. Tom Chapman was safe on an error, another run tallying. Singles by Dave Sherrow and Foster brought in two more and Rickerson's sacrifice fly closed out the incredible offensive display.

Four more tallied in the fifth when Chapman doubled, Pat Powers singled and Rickerson drove in Chapman and then Bucaro drove his sixth homer of the year over the left-field fence to make it 12-1.

The Lions loaded the bases in the sixth and got their last run when Powers hit into a force play, scoring Rooney.

Sherrow and Powers divided pitching duties, with Sherrow pocketing the win. Sherrow fanned four and Powers one.

Heights has no trouble; Hopkins blanks Norwood

Jim Hopkins strong-armed a two hitter Sunday with relief help from Mike McGrath as Arlington Heights picked up its third American Legion win in 24 hours over Norwood Park, 7-0.

This time, Post 208 turned the trick at Taft High School, Norwood Park's home field. On Saturday, Arlington defeated Norwood in the first of a twinbill, then won the second by forfeit.

The sweep of Norwood has left Arlington 11-2 in Ninth District play and 17-9 overall.

Hopkins picked up at least one strikeout per inning and got nine overall while taming Norwood on Sunday. He allowed two singles to right field, one each in the first and sixth innings. He walked two, both in the third.

Allie Weichers' one-out walk turned into a 1-0 first inning lead for Arlington on an error.

Marc Klemp opened the fourth inning with a hit and moved up when George Vukovich grounded out, second to first. Bruce Hanson delivered the RBI single.

Post 208 swelled its lead to 7-0 for Hopkins with five runs on three hits and a couple Norwood goof-ups in the seventh.

Hanson began the inning with a double to right field and stayed put when Kallberg walked. Cunningham tried a sacrifice and was safe, loading the bags, when Norwood pitcher Murrow committed his club's second error.

Up came Hopkins. He boomed a three-run triple to right, making it a 5-0 ballgame. After Bob Harth and Weichers struck out, Leonhard singled Hopkins home. He moved to second on a wild pitch and scored on Vukovich's single to right.

McGrath pitched the seventh for Arlington. He has a 3-0 record and has been scored upon in only four of 18 innings.

Johnson's offensive surge ended with four runs in the fifth before darkness halted the game. Amelio was safe on an error and Zuccarini was hit by a pitch to start the rally. Hits were made by Simek, Moughamian and Ken Ford, the last a double.

Amelio, who threw a no-hitter early this season, yielded one run and two hits, struck out 11 and walked five. Mike Kob and Mueller shared pitching chores for Bantam, giving seven runs apiece. Kob had four strikeouts and seven walks; Mueller had two strikeouts.

Wheeling Legion beaten Revenge to Mount Prospect

For the first four innings of Sunday's Mount Prospect at Wheeling American Legion baseball game at Wheeling, it appeared the teams might have to play all week to break the scoreless deadlock.

Pitchers Larry Monroe of Mount Prospect and Ken Roggenbuck of Wheeling, two of the best in the league and the Herald's two all-area selections for their outstanding spring high school campaigns, were each sailing along comfortably with a one-hitter. Neither team had threatened to score.

Then with the suddenness of a summer shower, Mount Prospect erupted for five quick runs. That was the game as coach Merv Fink's squad rode to a 6-1 victory and raised its record to 4-6 in the Ninth District.

It was a costly loss for Wheeling (7-4), which had moved within a game of first-place Arlington Heights by beating that team Thursday but again fell two behind in the loss column. Arlington has three games to play and Wheeling five. They'll meet again Wednesday at Recreation Park.

The game also provided revenge for Mount Prospect. Exactly a week earlier it had dropped both ends of a doubleheader to Wheeling, with Roggenbuck beating Monroe in the nightcap. This time the tables were turned.

Monroe surrendered only three hits all day, just one in the first six innings and not a run until the seventh. He struck out

The forehand stroke is one flowing motion which can be broken down into four components.

The Backswing: The player always starts from the ready position. The right shoulder and arms pivot while the head of the racket is brought slightly up and back. It remains perpendicular to the ground all the way and describes an arc until it points behind you.

The Approach: The left foot is placed forward toward the point of impact, and the left shoulder faces the net. The knees remain slightly bent and the weight rests mostly on the right foot.

The Hit: Now the weight is shifted slowly from the right foot to the left foot, moving the right shoulder toward the net. This shift weight continues through the moment of impact. The ball is hit when it is a little closer to the net than the left foot.

The Follow-through: The body weight is carried further until it rests on the left foot. The right foot serves for balance. The right shoulder follows inward with the weight of the body until the arm and racket point toward the top of the opponent's backstop.
